Military spying on White House told

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON—The White House investigative unit known as the plumbers uncovered evidence in late 1971 that a "ring" of military officers was relaying highly classified information on the China talks and other matters to officials in the Pentagon, well-informed sources report.

Some of the officers were assigned to the National Security Council.

The secret inquiry, headed by David R. Young Jr., then a codirector of the plumbers, was said to have determined that at least two military officers had participated in apparently illegal activities — including the ransacking of classified files and unauthorized photocopying of documents—in an apparent attempt to keep high Pentagon officials up-to-date on White House negotiations.

Although no charges were filed formally the sources added, as many as six military men were reassigned after the investigation.

Sources said that Young's inquiry initially was begun in response to the December, 1971, publication of secret National Security Council documents on the India-Pakistan war by Jack Anderson, the columnist, but quickly spread into a broad investigation of possible widespread military spying.

It was this investigation, reliable sources said, that has been repeatedly cited by President Nixon as the "national security" matter that justified his initial attempt last spring to limit the Justice Department's investigation of the plumbers.

The sources said that Young and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who also heads the National Security Council, both suspected then that reports on the White House's closely held negotiations with China, North Vietnam and the Soviet Union — were being leaked to Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird and Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Details of the negotiations were officially limited to a few officials in the White House and the National Security Council staff.

The investigation, which lasted until early 1972, sources said, was primarily conducted by Young. The other three members of the plumbers — Egil Krogh Jr., G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt Jr. — played little or no roles in the inquiry.

'Big step toward peace'

Kissinger in Egypt for talks

ASWAN, Egypt (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived in Aswan Friday night to "make a big step on the road toward peace in the Middle East."

He went from the Aswan airport to the pink, graystone vacation home of President Anwar Sadat where the two men met for an hour to discuss the separation of Egyptian and Israeli armies, a State Department spokesman said.

Kissinger went to his hotel after the meeting. He and Sadat will meet again Saturday.

Kissinger, on his third peace mission to Egypt since the October Arab-Israeli war, was reported by a senior U.S. official to be hoping that he could "grease the wheels" to get the Geneva peace talks going again.

Kissinger arrived a few hours after a United Nations peace force spokesman reported "a noticeable increase in activity" along the Suez Canal front. The Israeli command reported tank and artillery duels along the waterway Friday.

Kissinger told newsmen: "I came here to exchange ideas with our Egyptian friends and will make a major effort to make a big step on the road towards peace in the Middle East."

The secretary of state said they're OK but home-sick in first interview since the fighting stopped. Page A-9.

Israeli POWs in Syria plans to shuttle back and forth between Egypt and Israel, visiting both countries twice before moving on, probably to Jordan, Syria and Brussels. He will meet in Israel with Premier Golda Meir.

Sadat wore a military uniform as he received Kissinger. Photographers asked Sadat to shake Kissinger's hand a second time.

"Why should I?" Sadat asked. "Kissinger is my friend." The two did not shake hands again. Both men were smiling.

Two lines of Egyptian military police wearing red berets flanked the ramp of Kissinger's plane. Security in Aswan, on a war footing, was high.

Earlier, Cairo's official Middle East News Agency said that Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy met Kissinger at the airport and that the two men were to drive to a house where they would be met by Sadat.

The U.S. official who said Kissinger hopes to "grease the way" to fruitful peace talks, left the impression Kissinger would not have made the trip if he did not feel at the very least an agreement on disengagement of the rival armies could be worked out.

Kissinger believes "fairly rapid progress is needed," the official said.

Ruling opens big business data file

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal court ruled Friday that the Cost of Living Council has been illegally withholding financial information submitted by the nation's largest corporations to justify price increases.

The ruling by the three-judge Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals is expected to mean that large amounts of data in council files relating to costs and profits — figures that the businesses have vigorously defended as confidential — will now be available for public scrutiny.

The unanimous opinion overturned an earlier decision of the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia.

The appeal was sought by Consumer's Union, a public interest group that publishes Consumer Reports magazine, Sen. William D. Hathaway, D-Maine, and Peter J. Petkas, an attorney associated with Ralph Nader.

"It's going to be a tremendous boon to competition in some of these industries," said Peter Schuck, director of the Washington office of Consumers' Union.

"From the consumer's point of view, that's what competition is all about," Schuck said.

Attorneys for the Cost of Living Council declined to comment on the decision. James Elkins, a Justice Department attorney who argued the case on the CLC's behalf, said he would decide in about two weeks whether to appeal the ruling to the Supreme Court.

At issue was a complex interpretation of an amendment sponsored by Hathaway to the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970 — the statute that gives the government authority to impose wage-price controls on the economy.

That amendment sought to force the council to publicly disclose much more information than it now does from financial reports that companies with revenues of more than $250 million (roughly the nation's 700 largest corporations) are required to file every three months with the Cost of Living Council.

The public disclosure rule would take effect during any quarter when a company raised the price of a "substantial product" — a single product or service that accounts for 5 per cent or more of the gross sales or revenue — by more than 1.5 per cent.

In deciding what information should be made public and what should be kept confidential, the law stated that the CLC could not hold back any information that companies normally file in their public annual reports with the Securities and Exchange Commission. But in an important distinction, the law said that these figures must be broken down by individual product lines rather than on a companywide basis.

For example, General Motors currently makes public figures for only such broad categories as "automotive products" and "nonautomotive products." But in its reports to the council, GM discloses key profit and cost figures for its various makes of cars and trucks plus refrigerators, batteries and dozens of other product lines.

It is this information, jealously guarded by companies for competitive reasons, that is expected to be open to public view under the court's decision.

Oil industry fights to stem criticism

By WILLIAM D. SMITH
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The oil industry is mounting a counterattack to attempt to halt the growing criticism being directed at it by the Congress, the news media and the public.

At the same time, the Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, announced price increases, effective today, that followed similar actions in recent days by other major oil companies.

EXXON said it was raising its gasoline prices by seven-tenths of a cent a gallon and its prices for distillate products, including home-heating oil, by 5.1 cents a gallon.

It was learned Friday that the American Petroleum Institute planned to begin holding within the next two weeks a series of regular news conferences to reply to criticisms by Congress of the industry's conduct.

Individual companies are also stepping up their responses to criticism.

THEIR reactions are also believed likely to involve the plowing back of a considerable amount of profits into the search for new oil. These actions may take some of the steam out of the demands for excess profit taxes on oil company operations, industry analysts believe.

Frank Ikard, who heads the American Petroleum Institute, went even further.

"We are deeply concerned that people may be making government decisions, business decisions, and personal decisions on the assumption that the energy shortage is contrived by the oil companies," he said. "This would be a serious mistake and could lead to a worsening of the energy supply problem. Among other things it could convince the public to decide not to moderate their use of energy in the belief that the problem would soon go away."

"Stories that the nation's oil companies have conspired to contrive a gasoline shortage are false," he added. "These charges, made without a shred of supporting evidence, are being repeated often and consistently. As a result they have become an example without parallel in American history of unsupported statements gaining an air of credibility through repetition."

Mobile's statistics disclosed that the company's crude oil stocks stood at 16.2 million barrels on Dec. 31 compared with 17.2 million barrels in 1972. Gasoline stocks were 15 million barrels against 15.2 million the year before, while distillate stocks were 23.7 million barrels compared with 16.2 million a year earlier.

Figures of Indiana Standard showed gasoline stocks of 21.3 million barrels on Dec. 31 compared with 19 million barrels a year earlier. Distillate fuel oil stocks were 21.5 million barrels this year against 17.9 million barrels a year ago. Crude oil stocks were 20 million barrels compared with

Hundreds flee floods in South

New storms hit frozen Northeast

United Press International

Floodwaters spawned by torrential rains drove some 1,500 persons from their homes in the Southeast and South Friday. The newest in a succession of winter storms en-cased the Northeast in a fresh coat of ice and snow.

Record-breaking, sub-zero cold hung on in much of the West, northern plains and upper Midwest. Rain started falling again in California.

In southern West Virginia, floodwaters forced evacuation of between 300 and 400 families in Logan County, site of the 1971 Buffalo Creek flood which claimed 118 lives.

Gov. Arch Moore activated more than 100 National Guard troops to help people move to safety. The Red Cross set up shelters in churches and private homes.

Some 200 families were evacuated along the flooding Cumberland River in Cheatham County, Tenn., before clearing skies brought an easing of the situation.

The city of Logan, W.Va., was isolated by floodwaters. One suburban Logan department store had 12 feet of water, and muddy water coursed five feet deep through the main street of Chapmanville, forcing evacuation of 15 business establishments.

A baby tornado destroyed a mobile home and damaged a house near Montezuma, Ga. Unseasonably mild weather prevailed on the southern Atlantic and eastern Gulf coasts, and the mercury rose at Richmond, Va., to 72—a record high for the date.

A crippling ice storm spread across New England and upstate New York, forcing hundreds of schools and businesses to close. Fifteen inches of snow piled on Newport, Vt., and 12 inches on Glens Falls, N.Y., both in the northern Appalachians. Icing conditions hobbled surface rapid transit trains in Boston.

Ten tractor-trailer trucks jackknifed on icy Interstate 84 at Greenville, N.Y., tying up traffic for an hour. The New York State Thruway reported pavement conditions hazardous all the way from New York City to Syracuse. Many schools closed in the Albany area.

Ice storm and freezing rain warnings were up for sections of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Vermont.

Bear Lake, 48 inches at Wrightwood, 44 at the Palm Springs Tram and 40 at Mt. Wilson.

In the desert areas, forecasters predicted considerable cloudiness with chance of a few showers. Highs of 44 to 53 and lows in the 30s are forecast for the upper deserts, while weathermen predict highs in the lower deserts to reach the mid-60s, lows in the 40s.

HOWEVER, officials said Highway 30 from San Bernardino to Running Springs and Highway 18 from San Bernardino to Crestline would be closed. Access to Crestline, Lake Arrowhead, Running Springs and Green Valley Lake will be permitted only to permanent residents.

The weather service spokesman reported 34 inches of snow at Big weekend snow was predicted. San Bernardino County Supervisors, however, opened Highway 38 into Big Bear from Menlo and Route 18 into Big Bear from Lucerne Valley.

The supervisors said the roads would be open only as long as adequate parking is available in resort areas and only to motorists carrying enough gasoline, chains and shovels.

More rain, snow due in Southland

Weather forecasters predicted another wet weekend for the Southland late Friday as rain began to fall in the Long Beach area about 7 p.m.

But a spokesman for the National Weather Service said most of the heavy rainfall would occur before 5 a.m. today, with only a 50 per cent chance of scattered showers through daylight hours.

Partly cloudy skies in the afternoon with highs in the upper 50s and overnight lows in the upper 40s should pave the way for "a pretty fair Sunday," the forecaster added.

HE said winds of up to 35 miles an hour in the mountains and 25 miles an hour in coastal areas are predicted.

In the mountains, where heavy snowfall has stranded tourists and hampered residents, more

People in the news

Oldster upstages Nixon's backers

Combined News Services

About 50 young people rallied for President Nixon in front of the California Capitol Friday, but they were upstaged by a 93-year-old heckler.

The heckler was Robert Simpson, whose metal walking aid was bedecked with red and white signs urging Nixon's impeachment.

Members of the Unification Church, which sponsored the rally, chanted "We love Nixon! God loves Nixon!" on the front steps of the Capitol. They were bundled up against a 45-degree chill and carried a huge red, white and blue banner saying "Support Our President."

Simpson's sign read: "Answer to Watergate—Impeach Nixon—No Whitewash."

As the rally's brass band played "When the Saints Go Marching In," Simpson patrolled back and forth in front blowing a police whistle.

The Unification Church describes itself as an international Christian organization of 2 million members founded in 1954 by a Korean, Sun Myung Moon. Speakers at the rally said the U.S. must show compassion toward those involved in the Watergate scandal and unite behind Nixon to preserve freedom.

Simpson claims to have been arrested more than 270 times for violation of a state law against picketing inside the Capitol building. He calls himself the capital's "muckraker-in-chief" and claims legislators, judges and Gov. Reagan are trying to trample the rights of the people.

When a girl walked up to the microphone to sing at the rally, Simpson burrowed into his walker and produced a new sign reading "Love and Kisses for Lovely Ladies."

Prohibition

Sen. William Proxmire said Friday in Washington he has nominated a woman to the U.S. Military Academy even though the service academies won't accept women.

"To continue prohibiting women who want to serve from receiving the education and other advantages of the academies is to deny this country an immense talent resource," said the Wisconsin Democrat.

He said the name of Kathy Bartilson, a senior at Chippewa Falls High School, will be submitted along with those of 19 men to compete for his two available appointments to West Point.

Sextuplets

Sextuplets — three boys and three girls — were born almost a month prematurely to Mrs. Susan Rosenkowitz in South Africa Friday with the biggest baby weighing in at about 4.5 pounds.

The sextuplets were a first for South Africa and a hospital spokesman reported the 25-year-old mother and the babies were in good condition.

The infants had a combined weight of less than 25 pounds.

Band leader

The leader of the famed Marine Corps band has been reprimanded for allegedly accepting money for guest appearances as conductor of civilian bands.

Lt. Col. Dale C. Harpam voluntarily returned $4,481 in pay and allowances, including travel pay, he received from the military during the time he made the guest appearances, the Marine Corps said.

Crosby

Ailing singer Bing Crosby will undergo a probe of his diseased left lung to help pin down the cause of a lesion that has failed to respond to normal treatment, his doctor said Friday in Burlington.

Crosby's condition continued satisfactory. The 69-year-old entertainer, hospitalized on New Year's Eve for pleurisy later diagnosed as pneumonia, was cheerful and walking around talking to other patients at Peninsula Hospital — with his intravenous tubes following on a rolling pole.

Restful

President Nixon was reported by aides Friday to be enjoying the "restful atmosphere" of a closely guarded estate near the desert resort of Palm Springs.

According to spokesmen, Nixon played another nine-hole round of golf with friend C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, then relaxed with his family and spent some time working on the budget and State of the Union message to be sent to Congress later this month.

Shingles

Israeli Premier Golda Meir is suffering from shingles but is still scheduled to meet with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger on his swing through the Middle East, an aide said Friday in Jerusalem.

The aide said Mrs. Meir, 75, was in pain but not bedridden. She was previously reported to have influenza.

Confident

Robert Markley, 37, spent the first of his $200,000 top prize money in Michigan's state lottery treating friends and customers to champagne and kielbasa at the tavern he owns in Redford Township outside Detroit.

"I knew I was going to win the big one," said Markley, a divorced father of two sons. "One of my barmaids brought an astrology book some time back that said Jan. 10 would be my lucky day, especially for contests and romance."

Markley was so confident he chartered a bus to take 52 friends to the drawing Thursday at a shopping center.

Self interest

U.S. Sen. Herman Talmadge said Friday in Atlanta the U.S. ought to follow the example set by Germany and Japan and "put the best interests of our own people above all others."

Talmadge said the nation's economy has suffered in recent years because the U.S. has been too concerned about other countries' problems.

"We are being outworked, out-traded and out-negotiated by nations which have grown fat and prosperous largely at the expense of the American taxpayer," Talmadge told the Fulton County Grand Jurors Association. "The time has come for the United States to drive a harder bargain, to put the best interests of our own people above all others, and to stop trying to be all things to all nations."

Giving up

Jim Garrison, the colorful New Orleans district attorney for 12 years, Friday gave up a court challenge of the Democratic primary he lost to Harry Connick.

Garrison lost the Dec. 15 contest to Connick by 2,221 votes in the official count, but filed a suit saying there had been enough fraudulent votes cast to overturn the results.

"It has been a battle from the trial court all the way to the Louisiana Supreme Court, which finally remanded the case to trial," Garrison's office said.

Garrison said the courts had imposed "such restrictions on any possible trial of the matter that only a fraction of the story" could conceivably be brought out.

100,000 jobs lost in month

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — The energy crisis may have cost American workers as many as 100,000 jobs in December, figures released Friday by the Labor Department indicated. The Bureau of Labor Statistics said its monthly survey of industry employment showed total nonfarm payrolls were essentially unchanged last month, increasing by 35,000 to a seasonally adjusted 76.7 million.

But the government said there were some offsetting job losses in various industries "which appear to be due to actual or anticipated shortages of gasoline." Hardest hit were automotive dealership and service station workers where employment declined by a seasonally adjusted 50,000 in December.

Evidence indicated the gasoline shortage as well as the general economic slowdown also may have been responsible for the additional loss of nearly 50,000 jobs.

Cigarette critic

PHILADELPHIA — On the 10th anniversary of his landmark smoking and health report, former U.S. Surgeon General Luther Terry said Friday, a warning as bold as the skull and crossbones symbol of poison should be on all cigarette packs. Terry, whose 1964 report produced a law banning all television and radio advertising of cigarettes and a requirement for warning notices on all cigarette packs, made his recommendations during the signing of a "Bill of Rights for Non-Smokers" at historic Congress Hall.

New Russ missile sub

WASHINGTON — The Russians are building their third new class of missile-firing submarine, the Pentagon said Friday. The new sub, called the Delta-Plus, is believed designed to carry 16 missiles with a range of about 4,600 miles, some 1,600 miles longer than the best U.S. sub-launched missile.

Esso to pay 'ransom to poor'

BUENOS AIRES — The left-wing People's Revolutionary Army guerrillas said Friday that Esso Argentina Oil Corp. had agreed to donate $10 million worth of food, clothing, tools and medicine to the poor if the guerrillas would free Victor Samuelson, an Esso executive kidnapped Dec. 6. Announcement of the agreement came in a communiqué sent to Buenos Aires newspapers. Esso Argentina is a subsidiary of the Exxon Oil Co. with headquarters in New York. Seven men carrying submachine guns walked into a cafeteria at the Esso refinery in Campana, 56 miles north of Buenos Aires, on Dec. 6 and seized Samuelson as he was eating lunch with other executives. Last May, Ford Motor Co. donated $1 million in medicine, school supplies and food to poor areas in response to a guerrilla demand.

King's closing act?

STOCKHOLM — Sweden's young King Carl XVI Gustaf opened parliament Friday for the first time—and probably the last—amid rumors he would announce his engagement to a West German commoner. First order of business of the parliament will be to vote on a new constitution depriving the monarch of most of his remaining duties. Friday's ceremony, which dates to 1723, would be eliminated by the new document. Next year, the prime minister is expected to open parliament with the king invited to attend. Meantime, the Stockholm newspaper Expressen, quoting "informed court sources," said King Carl, 27, will become engaged in the spring to marry Silvia Sommerlath, a 25-year-old commoner from Heidelberg, Germany.

U.S. admits surveillance

NEW YORK — The federal government has said in court papers that it conducted electronic surveillance of members of the Socialist Workers Party from 1945 to 1963. It also acknowledged that from 1961 to 1969 the FBI had a program to disrupt the party. The papers were filed in U.S. District Court in reply to a suit by the Socialist Workers asking $27 million damages because of violations of party members' constitutional rights. The party claims 2,000 active members and ran a candidate for president in 1972.

T-Birds slowed down

WASHINGTON — The Air Force has ordered its colorful jet flying team, the Thunderbirds, to use older, slower planes that consume less fuel. A Pentagon source said Friday night the team will switch from F4 Phantom jets to T38 jet trainers. Downgrading of the Thunderbirds by the Air Force follows a similar move by the Navy, which is now putting pilots of its Blue Angels team into slower A4 jets instead of Phantoms.

Demo unity fails

WASHINGTON — Democratic unity over the party's proposed new delegate rules for the 1976 national convention publicly fell apart Friday on the issue of enforcement. At the first open meeting of the Democratic National Executive Committee, the controversy centered on five appointments to a new panel charged with policing compliance with the delegate selection rules. Barbara Mikulski of Baltimore, chairman of the rules-writing delegate selection commission, announced last week the appointment of four women and a man to serve on the compliance review commission. Her choices drew immediate opposition on the ground that all five were from the "new politics" faction that drove away party regulars and labor union supporters in 1972.

Booby trap kills 2

BELFAST — A bomb-laden car, which police theorized may have been booby trapped by Catholic extremists, exploded outside a British army barracks in Londonderry Friday, killing the two occupants and knocking down several pedestrians. The two dead — a man and a woman — were civilian employees at the barracks and were believed unaware of the bomb. Police theorized the Irish Republican Army may have booby trapped the car in hopes it would explode inside the barracks.

Blasts aimed at ITT

ROME — Four bomb explosions aimed at America's International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. Friday caused heavy damage at separate points in Rome but there was no loss of life. Typewritten messages found near the bomb sites accused ITT of a "reactionary and Fascist plot" in Italy. Police said the heaviest damage — estimated at $1.1 million — came at the offices of CECA, an Italian computer company which disclaimed any link with ITT.

Phnom Penh convoy

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia — A convoy of 100 trucks loaded with rice, salt, beer and other supplies arrived in Phnom Penh on Friday from the deep-water port at Kompong Som. Except for ammunition trucks, the vehicles were the first to get through from the sea since Highway 4 was closed by Communist-led insurgents two months ago.

Ball murderers sentenced

Two men convicted of murdering a Long Beach sporting goods store owner and his son were sentenced Friday to life terms in state prison — plus an additional five years for using firearms during commission of the crime.

Judge Walter Evans imposed the sentences in Pasadena Superior Court on Carl D. McQuillion, 23, and Walter Thomas Curry, 36, who were convicted Dec. 18 after a seven week trial of first degree murder. The victims, Cyril Ball, 64, and his son, James, 37, died after an execution-style killing at the Ball and Frank store, 345 Long Beach Blvd., Dec. 26, 1970.

The defendants were located in a Louisiana State prison and brought to trial as a result of a Secret Witness tip to the Independent, Press-Telegram which ended a 23-month stalemate in the case.

Dep. Dist. Atty. Charles Sheldon had sought to have two concurrent sentences imposed on each defendant, arguing that a single life sentence actually doesn't mean life, it means eligibility for parole in seven years.

However, the judge rejected that, and indicated he was imposing the maximum sentence he could order. He also ruled that Curry, who has seven prior felony convictions, is an habitual criminal, a ruling which makes Curry ineligible for parole for at least 12 years.

Prior to pronouncing sentence, Evans denied motions for new trials for both men. Defense motions cited what attorneys called errors in the trial and jury instructions. Appeals are expected to be filed, defense attorneys said.

L.B. man gets life for fatal stabbing

Donald Ray Moore, 32, Friday was sentenced in Long Beach Superior Court to possible life imprisonment for his Nov. 26 conviction of first-degree murder in connection with the stabbing death last April of Paul Schyler Stumm in East Long Beach.

Judge Pat Mullendore, who presided at the defendant's month-long trial, denied defense motions for a new trial and reduction of the charge and ordered Moore to begin serving the sentence immediately. Mullendore said the defendant would be eligible for parole after seven years.

Moore was convicted of stabbing Stumm during an argument in the defendant's apartment at 1409 E. Fourth St. in Long Beach, then allowing the 20-year-old victim to bleed to death in a bathtub. A medical examiner testified during the trial Stumm might have lived had he received immediate medical attention.

SAC colonel turns down county post

Our L.A. Bureau

A Strategic Air Command colonel who was named the county's new facilities director last Tuesday told supervisors Friday he would not be taking the job.

Col. Charles W. Sampson, who was named to the $40,644-a-year post after placing first in a Civil Service examination, cited "personal and health reasons" for turning down the job.

In a letter to board Chairman Kenneth Hahn, Sampson said, "Certain results of my recent retirement physical examination have caused me to reevaluate my decision. In all honesty and in fairness to the board, the county and my family, I am compelled to ask that my appointment you so kindly approved be canceled."

Because of personal and health reasons, he said he felt he could not "devote the full effort and time" necessary to do the job.

Officials said the Civil Service list of candidates from which Sampson was chosen "remains open," adding that they would simply move up the man who placed fourth so that the supervisors could still choose a substitute from the remaining top three qualifiers.

Prior to Sampson's selection, the second man on the list was Edwin Benedict, an acting division chief in the project management division of the Chief Administrative Office. Stephen Koonce, chief of engineering and construction at the University of California in San Diego, was third.

The fourth man in the list, who now will move to number three position, was Victor Adorian, who is now the county's director of real estate management.

Hahn said he expects the supervisors will choose a replacement for Sampson Tuesday. The facilities director will be responsible for a mammoth new county agency which will oversee all capital construction projects from initial concept through planning and construction to final occupancy.

Robbery, rape suspect pleads not guilty

A 25-year-old Compton auto wrecker Friday pleaded not guilty in Long Beach Superior Court to charges of rape, robbery and assault with a deadly weapon in connection with the Dec. 18 holdup of a North Long Beach bar.

Roy Pink, of 1604 N. Chester Ave., appeared before Judge Ellsworth Beam who set trial date for Feb. 19 and continued the defendant in sheriff's custody in lieu of $25,000 bail.

Pink, who is represented by the public defender, is charged with two counts each of robbery and assault with a deadly weapon and one count of rape. He was charged with a deadly weapon and one count of rape. He was charged with a deadly weapon and one count of rape.

Household looted of jewelry, cash

A television, stereo, kitchen appliances and jewelry with a total value of $1,945 were stolen from the home of Dorothy Routh, 460 Bellflower Blvd., by burglars who pried open a kitchen window to gain entry, Long Beach police said Friday.

Sheriff's car routs marauding dogs

Norwalk sheriff's deputies Friday drove their patrol car into a pack of marauding dogs attacking a seven-year-old boy in La Mirada, possibly saving his life, the sheriff's office reported.

Sgt. Donald Dickinson and three deputies were called to 13109 Woodridge Ave. by Mrs. Elaine Haas, who told them that a pack of dogs had been attacking youngsters in the neighborhood for the last three days.

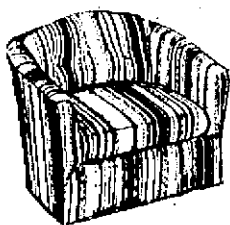

She said that a group of seven dogs had attacked three boys on their way to school that morning.

Just as the deputies had finished talking down the information, they saw a child under attack by the dogs.

Deputies G. Lay and H. Pollok ran to their patrol car and drove it into the middle of the pack, dispersing the dogs. Animal control officers later aided the deputies in capturing 15 of the dogs.

The name of the boy was not released by the sheriff's office. He was not injured.

Bad bill

I recently received a counterfeit $50 bill from the California Department of Human Resources Development office in Long Beach. Two days later when I tried to spend the money at a store, the manager called the police and they took the $50. I contacted the unemployment office, but I was told nothing could be done, and the police won't help me get my money back either. I know I got the counterfeit money from the state because HRD always pays me my unemployment benefits in $50 bills. Can ACTION LINE do something about this because I really need the money. R. M., Long Beach.

TURNING OUT THE LIGHTS ONCE MEANT ROMANCE

HRD official, there is no way you can prove you got the bill at the unemployment office. Neither the state nor the bank that supplies HRD with its cash keeps a record of the serial numbers of the money given out in unemployment benefits. The spokesman for HRD said that because of this incident, the clerks in the unemployment office have been instructed to inspect carefully the money they handle. Recipients of benefits also should examine the bills they receive before they leave the cashier's window.

Use tax

In May I bought a new car in Detroit. I got a job in California in July and brought the car into this state. Even though I technically lived here, I was out of the state much of the time. In September, I was assigned to the office here and the car has been in California ever since. When I recently inquired about registration fees, I was told I would have to pay $200 in use tax because I brought the car into California within 90 days after the purchase date. Since I really didn't bring the car into California for good until September, I think I should be allowed to list that month as the date of entry and thus avoid the use tax. R. D., Costa Mesa.

The law states that a new car purchased out of state is subject to use tax here if it is brought into California for the first time within 90 days after the purchase date regardless of whether or not it's later driven outside the state. A spokesman for the California Board of Equalization, which enforces the use tax law, said you also would be held to the July entry date because you were employed here and had a California address at that time. He added that the board can require a new resident to verify his date of entry. If you list the September date, you could be asked to produce employment records or some other piece of evidence to verify that you were living in another state before September.

Lost time

During the summer, I took two antique watches to Shielor's Jewelry, 6725 Long Beach Blvd., for repairs. One of them was a man's pocket watch with the initials W. V. J. engraved on the back and the other was a lady's pendant watch. In September, Shielor notified me that he was going out of town for a few weeks and would call me when he returned. I never heard from him again and when I visited his shop, I found he had gone out of business. His landlord told me that Shielor had left a note on his door referring his patrons to another jeweler in town, but the note had been removed and the landlord didn't remember the name of the other jeweler store. Can ACTION LINE please help me locate my watches? They belonged to my grandparents. J. A., Lakewood.

We weren't able to track down your watches. We checked with the Long Beach Police Department, the city's business license division, the Better Business Bureau and several businesses located near Shielor's old shop, but none of these sources had any leads. We also surveyed several local jewelry stores and came up empty-handed. Shielor's home telephone has been disconnected and he did not leave a forwarding address for his business or his residence.

At Senate impeach trial stage

Saxbe sees Nixon needing own lawyer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe said Friday it would be wrong for the taxpayers to finance President Nixon's defense lawyers in the Senate trial of any impeachment charges.

Saxbe said he believes "a defense fund" should be established if the accusations against Nixon proceed to that point.

Saxbe made his comments at his first news conference since becoming head of the Justice Department a week ago.

He said that government lawyers, including those in the Justice Department, could rightly be involved in defending the President at some point prior to a Senate trial if the House voted to impeach simply on the basis that they "don't like him."

He said that politically motivated impeachment proceedings attacking Nixon's performance of duties within his clear authority as president would allow Nixon to rely on government-paid lawyers.

"If on the other hand," he continued, "it's based on an indictment or solid charges of criminality, then you have reached the point that it is beyond the scope" of his duties as president, and government lawyers should take no part in the defense.

ATTY. GEN. WILLIAM SAXBE
At His First News Conference

—AP Wirephoto

"If it reaches the Senate for any reason, the Justice Department is out of it at that point," the attorney general added.

"His defense obviously would be in the hands of his personal attorneys."

He was asked whether he will allow three Justice Department lawyers on loan to the White House to continue working on Nixon's defense against Watergate charges. He indicated that he would for the time being but said they probably would be recalled at some point during any impeachment proceedings.

Without clearly defining the situation which should compel the President to pay for his own lawyers, Saxbe said at one point "there will have to be set up an independent defense. I think there would have to be a defense fund established."

Saxbe repeated his pledges to guarantee the independence of the special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski and said he has not talked with Jaworski during his week in office.

"At any time he wants to talk to me, he can, but I'm not going to call him," Saxbe said.

He said if prosecutors develop evidence against the President, it will be up to Jaworski and U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica to determine whether to present it to a federal grand jury or to the House committee considering impeachment.

Saxbe said he expects Jaworski to cooperate with the committee but also believes the judge must have some voice in deciding what, if any, claim the grand jury has on such evidence.

He said he thinks "there's a serious question" whether a sitting president can be indicted prior to impeachment, but it would be up to the Supreme Court to make the ultimate decision.

On another subject, he said the department's antitrust division is continuing an investigation of whether major oil companies collaborated to contrive a fraudulent fuel shortage. But he noted that antitrust officials say that so far they have found little evidence of such collusion.

"As soon as we either find a clean bill of health or find something wrong, it will be reported to you," he said.

Saxbe promised a continuing investigation and public report of an FBI counterintelligence program carried out for three years under the late J. Edgar Hoover "to expose, disrupt and otherwise neutralize" the new left movement.

"That needs to be aired," he remarked.

Saxbe said he is satisfied with the way government prosecutors handled the investigation and negotiations that lead to Spiro T. Agnew's resignation after pleading no contest to a single count of tax evasion.

He was asked his view of the bargain that saved Agnew from a prison sentence.

"Most of those same people who want to give him 20 years are the ones who bellyache about a six-month sentence for mugging," he said.

Agnew was sentenced to three years of unsupervised probation and fined $10,000.

Ehrlichman plea bargain denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spokesmen for former presidential assistant

John D. Ehrlichman and Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski denied Friday that Ehrlichman was engaged in plea-bargaining.

Ehrlichman's lawyer, John J. Wilson, and Jaworski's public affairs office also denied Ehrlichman, who arrived here Sunday for a week's stay, had been given an opportunity to plead guilty to one felony charge in exchange for his cooperation in the case.

Wilson acknowledged that he and Ehrlichman spent 65 minutes with Jaworski on Thursday. Wilson, at the time, told a reporter that "not to my knowledge" did Ehrlichman have any plans to enter a plea.

When asked whether he would recommend that Ehrlichman plead, Wilson replied, "No comment."

The Los Angeles Times reported that Ehrlichman was given the opportunity to plead guilty to one charge, as others implicated in the scandal have done.

Ehrlichman was scheduled to return to his home in Seattle, Wash., today.

Ehrlichman is under indictment by the Los Angeles County Grand Jury in connection with the 1971 break-in at the office of the psychiatrist for Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

Nixon challenged on dairy data

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing a White House tape recording, a lawyer challenging the 1971 increase in milk price supports Friday questioned President Nixon's account of what was said at a key meeting with dairymen.

William Dobrovir filed court papers saying that the White House account of the meeting "does not appear to be exact."

Dobrovir said a transcript of Nixon's remarks, taken from a tape recording the White House provided him under court order, can be interpreted as showing that the President thanked dairy leaders for their political support on March 23, 1971.

Later that day, Nixon ordered price supports increased. The White House has denied that the decision was influenced by promises of campaign contributions from dairy interests.

The White House, in a statement released late Tuesday, said Nixon opened the 1971 meeting "by thanking the dairy leaders for the support they had given to administration policies."

Dobrovir, who represents consumer advocate Ralph Nader in the suit against the administration, said the White House tape showed Nixon said this:

"I first want to say that I am very grateful for the support that we have had (inaudible word) from this group. I know that in American agriculture you're widely recognized; that it cuts across all the farmer organizations, is represented in all the states.

"I know, too, that you are a group that are politically very conscious, not in any party sense but you realize that what happens in Washington not only affects your business success but affects the economy. Our foreign policy (inaudible word) affects you.

"And you are willing to do something about it. And I must say a lot of businessmen and others I get around this table, they yammer and talk a lot but they don't do anything about it. But you and I appreciate that I don't need to spell it out. Friends talk, and others keep me posted as to what you do."

According to the White House, Nixon had been told that dairymen had promised to give $2 million to his 1972 campaign.

The White House says this played no part in Nixon's decision to overrule Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin and raise milk price supports.

The tape Dobrovir transcribed is the one he played in part at a Washington party last month. The local bar association is investigating his conduct in that affair, and the judge in the case criticized the lawyer for it.

Dobrovir included the partial transcript of Nixon's words in a motion seeking a court order to force the White House to produce certain documents and records that it has refused to make public.

Dobrovir said the White House had waived any privilege connected with the documents by mentioning them in its lengthy statement it issued Tuesday to defend Nixon's role in the price-support decision.

He said the documents are "essential to a resolution of the fact issues" in the case.

He said the issues include whether Nixon's order to raise prices was brought about by the dairymen's campaign contributions, as Nader alleges, or because of congressional pressure, political considerations and economic factors, as asserted by the White House.

Ford pledges 'open door' to blacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford held a two-hour luncheon meeting with 16 black leaders from across the country Friday and promised them an "open door" policy to hear their problems.

The group included black mayors, civil rights leaders and educators, who said afterwards that the discussion ranged from questions about President Nixon's credibility to revenue sharing and what some of them referred to as the "energy hoax."

Mayor Thomas Bradley of Los Angeles said they had talked to Ford about "concrete proposals," adding that there had not been that kind of communication previously between this administration and the black community. He said there was a need for "someone to listen to our concerns and to provide an input to the highest levels of government." He said of Ford, "I think he will do that."

Vernon Jordan, executive director of the National Urban League, said Ford was "very affirmative" and added that he hoped the vice president could make the administration "sympathetic to black problems."

Jordan called it a "very frank, candid, lay-it-on-the-line kind of meeting" something he said he had suggested that President Nixon do 18 months ago. He said "we raised the question of the credibility of both the President and this administration."

Chicago Civil Rights Leader Jesse Jackson added that he brought up the question of what he called "the energy hoax" and suggested emergency legislation to aid people laid off because of the energy crisis.

Jackson said it was the feeling of the black community that there is "a closed door policy" in the Nixon administration, and he pointed out that it took 13 months for black congressmen to get a meeting with Nixon.

Roy Wilkins, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, noted that the last time he had been at the White House was a 45-minute meeting with President Nixon in 1969 and that he had never met with former vice president Agnew.

News body raps phone data subpoenas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Newspaper Association protested Friday that government subpoena of long distance phone call records of reporters "is a very dangerous invasion of privacy."

The protest was made to the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the Justice Department in letters by Jonathan Marshall, chairman of the association's Freedom of Information Committee.

He said if the new practice of obtaining the records is allowed to continue "it can lead to an unhealthy situation in which government agencies can use telephone records to inhibit the free flow of information."

Marshall, publisher of the Scottsdale, Ariz., Daily Progress, wrote that records of reporters and editors should be kept confidential.

AT&T said last month it has no choice under law but "to submit such records to government agencies upon valid subpoena or on demand pursuant to lawful processes."

That response was made to representatives of 10 news organizations and the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, which threatened legal action.

Ford recalling 133,000 cars

DETROIT (UPI)—The Ford Motor Co. said Friday that it was recalling 133,000 of its 1974-model cars because 400 may have a defective automatic speed control device.

The company said it would replace a component within the system on all 133,000 cars at no cost to the owners. Normal parts and labor charges would cost about $30 or almost $4 million for the entire recall, a spokesman said.

It was the largest recall by Ford since September of 1972, when the company had to call back 900,000 cars equipped with power steering.

A Ford spokesman said the company had received nine reports in which drivers using the speed control device were unable to shut it off by using the turn-off switches on the steering wheel and brake pedal.

The speed control is optional on the Continental Mark IV, Lincoln Continental, Thunderbird, Mercury Ford, Mercury Montego, Ford Torino, Cougar and Ford Ranchero models.

The device allows the driver to travel at a constant speed without keeping a foot on the gas pedal.

Court rejects Litton Navy payments suit

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A federal appeals court ruled Friday that the Navy does not have to pay Litton Industries about $3 million weekly for a controversial order of long-overdue assault ships.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned a lower court injunction that had ordered payments to continue indefinitely.

The appeals court said a federal judge in Biloxi, Miss., had no jurisdiction to grant that injunction, and the case should be heard by the federal Court of Claims instead.

At issue is a $1.2 billion contract made in 1969 between the Navy and Litton for five Landing Helicopter Assault vessels, each about the size of a football field. Payment was to be made in two ways.

Over the first 40 months, the Navy was to pay a set amount, based on costs actually incurred by Litton. After that time, payment would be made on what percentage of ships were completed, with overpayments to be returned.

However, the shipyard had its problems. The government blamed poor management and the shipyard blamed federal interference — and the ships ran 23 to 32 months behind schedule. The first was finally launched Dec. 1.

After one contract extension, the Navy demanded Litton abide by the contract and return an estimated $54.7 million in overpayments.

The traffic safety group had ordered General Motors to recall the 1953 and 1950 model Cadillacs earlier in the day after saying it had determined that a serious safety defect existed in the cars' steering mechanism.

The NHTSA had also ordered GM to make repairs of the steering mechanism at no cost to the customer.

But GM immediately appealed the order, and U.S. District Court Judge Charles J. Jones granted the automakers' request for a temporary restraining order.

Nuclear plant study urged

By NOEL SWANN
Our L.A. Bureau

The Los Angeles County Grand Jury has urged the Board of Supervisors to press Congress to initiate a "crash research program" aimed at solving problems now slowing up development of nuclear generating plants.

In its 1973 year-end report, the jury's Environmental Committee said a long-term solution to the shortage of energy will come only by "substantial increases in development of new sources."

The committee said, "Man is making his first serious efforts to take energy directly from the sun. But until these are successful, we must rely on proven energy sources and the most pollution-free generating method we now have could be nuclear."

The committee noted development of nuclear plants has been delayed because of "concern for safety, thermal pollution and proper disposal of radioactive waste."

IN CALLING for support of the crash research program, the committee said "a major breakthrough" will have been made if the present problems are solved.

Focusing much of its report on the current energy crisis, the committee also urged that emergency plans be formed to "avoid confusion during possible power curtailments."

"Unless emergency plans are set up in advance, serious problems will occur in blackout areas including looting, loss of traffic control, robbery and the instant increase of other crimes," the committee said.

Public utilities, government agencies, law enforcement and fire prevention organizations should cooperate in preparing the emergency plans, it said.

Casting an eye on the future, the committee noted that the most pollution-free method now known for propelling vehicles is electricity. But it said the major limitation of this method is "lack of efficient batteries or fuel cells."

HOWEVER the committee noted, "Much progress has been made to beat the problem in the space program." And it recommended that the supervisors urge the federal government to make all possible information on space program fuel cells available to industry and private research organizations.

Switching to the need for a mass transit system in the Los Angeles area, the committee said it has not had time to fully analyze the proposed, multimillion-dollar bond issue which the Southern California Rapid Transit District hopes to put to voters this year.

Because of this, the committee said it could not make a recommendation on the transit plan either way. But in the meantime, it urged the supervisors to give full support to the development of "short range" mass transit improvements.

Among these, it cited proposals for feeder bus lines and construction of an electric "people mover" in the downtown Los Angeles area.

It noted that the Los Angeles City Community Redevelopment Agency has proposed building two outlying parking structures to which central city workers will drive before being moved to the downtown area in the "people movers."

The committee slapped the RTD for having an inadequate information service relating to bus schedules and routes.

To overcome this, it recommended that bus routes be displayed in shopping center parking lots and the Los Angeles Civic Center and other locations, and that timetables of bus services be posted near bus stops in key areas.

DEAN KAHLER, 23, paralyzed from the waist down from injuries received at the Kent State University shooting four years ago, testifies from his wheelchair before a federal grand jury in Cleveland.

Conspiracy at Kent St. hinted

CLEVELAND (UPI)—The federal grand jury investigating the killing of four Kent State University students by Ohio National Guardsmen four years ago apparently is considering the possibility of conspiracy in the incident, a witness said Friday.

Alan Canfora, 24, Barberton, Ohio, one of several former KSU students wounded in the incident, told newsmen after he testified, that he was questioned about "the conspiracy theory and I said I thought it was a possibility."

Canfora was one of 25 persons indicted for second-degree rioting by a special state grand jury which investigated the same incident. He was never convicted.

OTHERS testifying Friday included John R. Cleary, 22, Scotia, N.Y.; Donald MacKenzie, 25, Richboro, Pa.; Robert F. Stamps, Cleveland; Thomas Grace, 23, Syracuse, N.Y.; James Russell, 26, Hampstead, Md.; and Douglas Wentmore, 24, Hiram, Ohio.

MacKenzie, on the stand for the second day, was shot in the back of the neck from about 730 feet as he ran from the firing guardsmen. Kahler was hit in the spine and is paralyzed from the waist down.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Gen. J. Stanley Pottinger said the investigation was "coming along on schedule."

Four students were killed and nine wounded May 4, 1970, when National Guardsmen fired on a group of students who were demonstrating against expanded U.S. military involvement in Indochina.

Cartoon depicting dollar confiscated

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The U.S. Secret Service confiscated from a newspaper Friday a syndicated cartoon with drawings of three $1 bills and the caption: "Administration's gasoline ration stamps."

The Secret Service confiscated negatives and printing plates of the cartoon from The Salt Lake Tribune, and agent Anthony Sherman said the action was routine. The cartoon had appeared in the newspaper's Friday editions.

Sherman said no further action is usually taken in such cases because "very obviously... there's no intent to defraud, there's no intent to counterfeit."

But he said the cartoon, by Los Angeles Times artist Paul Conrad, was in violation of laws forbidding reproduction of U.S. currency. He said the government's concern is that if the plates "were stolen, lost, or got into the wrong hands, they might be used elsewhere for the wrong purposes."

Each bill in the cartoon was altered to bear the line: "One Dollar Per Gallon."

A spokesman for the publishers of the Tribune said the newspaper had agreed to get the negatives and other materials together so an agent could pick them up.

Russians agree to delay in delivery of U.S. wheat

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department said Friday the Soviet Union has agreed to delay taking 18.4 million bushels of U.S. wheat until after next summer's harvest. Officials hope the move will help cool threats of rising bread prices.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carroll G. Brunthaver said he was "very pleased" by the Soviet delay in wheat orders. But he declined to speculate on what effect it would have on bread prices.

Bakers claim bread prices could soar to as much as $1 per loaf unless the government immediately imposes wheat export controls. The Nixon administration is opposed to such curbs.

Brunthaver's comments were made to newsmen following a department report on export commitments as of Dec. 28. Earlier this week, officials said they had urged U.S. exporters to delay some deliveries of wheat until after the new harvest is ready next summer.

BRUNTHAVER said he did not know whether the Soviet delay was prompted by department requests to the grain trade. But he said no other countries had so far indicated they would postpone deliveries.

Shortly before the report, Brunthaver told a food editors conference that no official or informal approaches had been made by the government to the Soviet Union. But, he said, if the report showed some wheat left to be shipped "that we think they don't need before the new crop's in we probably would make official representations to them."

Despite the shift to next crop year in Soviet orders, the report showed total wheat exports for the year ending June 30 could exceed 1.3 billion bushels — virtually unchanged from earlier indications — and leave the U.S. reserve at its lowest since 1948.

The Soviets originally were estimated to take 125 million bushels in 1973-74. The shift of 18.4 million leaves about 107 million. By the end of 1973, some 38.7 million of the 107 million remained to be delivered.

THE ISSUE of bread prices has stirred exchanges between Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz and the bakers. He told the industry Friday it "would be an economic blunder" to impose wheat export controls.

In a letter to Bill O. Mead, chairman of the American Bakers Association, Butz accused the industry of "a startling lack of understanding" in claims made Wednesday that consumers might have to pay a $1 for a 24-ounce loaf of bread if restraints are not put on wheat exports.

"That is preposterous, and intentionally or unintentionally you launched an irresponsible, scare tactic Wednesday to catch the headlines and perpetuate a hoax on consumers," Butz said. Calling it a "calculated move" by the bakers, Butz said the $1 bread price was used as an excuse to ask for immediate export controls for wheat.

"IF YOUR organization actually thought wheat prices would move up to make $1 bread by May, bakers would move into the futures market and make a killing," Butz said.

To reach $1 per loaf, Butz said wheat prices would have to rise to $33 per bushel. The price of wheat on the futures market for May delivery is about $6 per bushel, he said.

The American Bakers Association said it had no comment on Butz's letter to Mead, but it said the 18.4 million bushels of wheat delayed for delivery to Russia was a "drop in the bucket" in terms of over-all need.

"I am delighted to hear this. That's great," Mead told a reporter Friday night. "It's the kind of action that we have suggested. We certainly are pleased to see something is done to help assure us that we will not run out of wheat..."

"WE DON'T want enough wheat shipped off that we have no reserve until the new crop or that prices go even temporarily fantastically high, as happened with other items such as soybeans," he added. "I am sure the American consumer and the baker will be pleased."

Butz said a 1½-pound loaf of bread costs about 40 cents and includes slightly more than seven cents worth of wheat.

"Now, maybe those 40 cents of other nonwheat costs and profits are going to go up by May," Butz wrote. "If so, say so. Don't lay all the blame on wheat for your increased costs."

The department says the 1974 wheat crop could be a record of two billion bushels, up from the previous high of 1.7 billion last year. That will be enough, officials say, to meet all requirements in 1974-75 and begin rebuilding U.S. reserves.

Earlier, the department disclosed figures showing that the retail price of bread has gone up seven cents per one-pound loaf since the initial big sales of grain were made to the Soviet Union 18 months ago.

DEPARTMENT economists use the one-pound loaf, not the 24-ounce family size cited by the bakers and Butz as a standard.

Of the seven-cent increase, higher wheat prices accounted for only 2.2 cents and other farm ingredients one-half cent.

Israeli PWs say they're OK but homesick in Syria prison

Lee Egerstrom, of the Independent Press-Telegram's Washington Bureau, in his last dispatch from Syria before departing for Saudi Arabia, reports on the late of two Israeli prisoners of war held in Syria. Syrian authorities broke a ban on such interviews for the first time since shortly after the shooting war stopped in November.

By LEE EGERSTROM
COPYRIGHT 1974
RIDER PUBLICATIONS

DAMASCUS — A Syrian army major who speaks Hebrew turned to Capt. Yoram Shachar and said, "Your picture will be all over the United States."

Shachar, a 26-year-old Israeli Phantom jet pilot, was shot down near the Syrian-Lebanese border Oct. 8 while returning to Israel from a bombing mission on Damascus.

"I hope I can see my picture again at my home," the Israeli prisoner of war said through two interpreters. "I hope that time will come when I am not an old man and gray."

Shachar and a fellow Israeli pilot, Capt. Ori Shachak who was shot down Oct. 7 on the second day of the October Arab-Israeli war, were interviewed by two American journalists during a meeting arranged by the Syrian government.

Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., who currently is touring the Middle East before Congress reconvenes later this month, requested the interview during a meeting with Syrian President Hafiz al-Assad.

Abourezk told Assad that reports from Israel had reached the United States indicating that Israeli POWs were being mistreated and that most, if not all, prisoners had been killed.

(In Washington, an Israeli Embassy spokesman said the two pilots interviewed by Egerstrom had been reported alive, but this dispatch was the first confirmation of their survival and the first word of their condition.

(Press counselor Gad Ranon, said only two other prisoners held in Syria had been interviewed by newsmen, those shortly after the fighting ended last October. Ranon said his government estimates that between 150 and 170 Israeli POWs, only a few of them pilots, are believed imprisoned in Syria, and that a number were executed.)

Assad, and other Syrian government officials during two days of meetings prior to the interview, denied the Israeli claims of executions. However, they would not give details on how many prisoners of war they hold captive following the October war.

Israel has claimed that as many as 108 prisoners have been taken by the Syrians. The Syrians are less specific in official statements claiming only "a relative handful" of prisoners.

Shachar and Shachak were brought to an unidentified military building in an old sector of Damascus for an interview attended by several government and military officials, Abourezk and three of his Senate staff members.

Fred Ward, a photojournalist for the Black Star Picture Agency, and this correspondent were told by the prisoners of war that they are in good health and are being treated well.

They were kept isolated from each other and both said they had not seen any other prisoners since their capture.

Shachak identified himself as Israeli military number 950182, is married and has a six-year-old son. He is from Kibbutz Kfar Masarek near Haifa.

Shachar said his military number is 917771 and he has a wife, a three-year-old daughter and a two-year-old son living at Israeli Military Base.

Syrian government officials acknowledged that the Israeli prisoners are kept apart and are seated through the Damascus area. When asked about his living conditions, a translator said Shachar described his quarters as "a good building...A military building."

Both men looked healthy and were wearing undistinguishable military clothing without markings or insignia. Both looked frightened during the interview, however. The Syrian interpreters introduced both men to the visiting American senator and they asked him to notify their families of the visit later when Abourezk is in Israel.

Shachak, in explaining his uneven schedule while living in captivity, said he had recently been allowed to write a letter to his wife and family. Both men said they read and make drawing for recreation.

Shachak said his mission was to bomb civil institutions in Damascus. After the raid, he said, he was shot down in Syria but was captured by Syrian military forces and he is not sure of the location.

The pilot, from Israeli Squadron 208, said he has since "learned that quite a lot of civilians were killed and feels badly about that."

Damascus, which remains blacked out evenings as it continues in a state of war, has not complied with the Geneva convention requirement to turn over the names and numbers of prisoners it holds.

Assad and other government officials, when asked about the prisoners, stressed that the Syrians will comply with the Geneva conventions when Israel complies with United Nations regulations on the treatment of civilians.

The Syrian officials stated bewilderment that the world could be so concerned about "a handful" of prisoners when the Israelis have driven 17,000 Syrians from their homes in occupied lands since the October war.

The government made clear it intends to hold out on the Israeli prisoners until some settlement of the displaced Syrians is resolved.

U.N. reports increased fighting on Suez front

New York Times Service

CAIRO — The United Nations command Friday reported a marked increase of military activities by Egyptian and Israeli forces on the Suez front during the last two days.

Rudolf Stadjuhar, the United Nations spokesman here, said a heavy four-hour exchange of fire from artillery, mortar, tanks and machine guns occurred in the area of Adabiya, on the Gulf of Suez southeast of Suez City, Thursday morning.

The firing was started by the Egyptians, he said.

In the afternoon firing broke out "throughout the Suez City area" and lasted about 45 minutes, Stadjuhar said. Mortar, artillery and machine guns were used on both sides, he said. It was not clear which side initiated the exchange.

Three empty Egyptian trucks belonging to a U.N. supply convoy and parked in the area of a Finnish battalion, were burned in the exchange and a fourth truck was damaged, Stadjuhar said.

Stadjuhar's report on Thursday's fighting was "preliminary" and will be completed today probably with news of other incidents. The daily briefings usually deal with events occurring two days before.

The Israeli command Thursday reported that one Israeli soldier was killed and five wounded in Thursday's fighting.

The previous day, Wednesday, an Austrian detachment observed heavy firing in an area some 10 miles west of Fayed on the west bank of the canal, Stadjuhar said.

The exchange involved tanks and artillery, he said.

Israeli forces fired two antitank missiles southwest of Fayed, which is on the western bank of the Great Bitter Lake, the spokesman said.

There were sharp clashes that day also near Adabiya and southeast of Kantara on the east bank of the canal, Stadjuhar reported.

An Egyptian unit that had advanced 200 yards southeast of Kantara and planted landmines a few days ago was still in its position, Stadjuhar said. The same was true of an Egyptian patrol that moved 50 yards forward outside Suez City last Monday, he added.

U.S. asks Russians to help free Syria's Israeli POWs

ASWAN, Egypt (AP) — A high American official said Friday the United States has been appealing periodically to the Soviet Union to keep its promise to help win release of Israeli war prisoners in Syria.

The official acknowledged that the POW issue remains a major impediment to Middle East peace settlement and that it goes to the heart of U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's credibility with the Israelis.

Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev promised Kissinger in Moscow during the October war that he would make a "maximum effort" with the Syrian government, the official said.

Damascus so far has refused even to exchange prisoner lists with the Israelis.

The Syrians have refused to yield on the prisoner issue until the Israelis give up all the territories occupied during the 1967 and 1973 wars.

Berrigan attack on Israel stirs strong reactions

Jewish leader, Catholic writer reply to priest

By LES RODNEY

A roundhouse attack on Israel by Rev. Daniel Berrigan, controversial Jesuit priest who was imprisoned for burning Vietnam war records, has stirred both Jewish and Catholic circles to sharp replies.

Father Berrigan was taken to task for "simplistic moralizing" and "distortions" by Rabbi Arthur Hertzberg, president of the American Jewish Congress, and by Catholic teacher and theologian Michael Novak in the Catholic journal Commonweal, who said "the new left, including the Catholic left, has veered around to join an ancient right."

Berrigan, in a speech before the Association of Arab University Graduates in Washington, D.C., assailed Israel for "domestic repression, deception, cruelty, militarism," for having turned the "settler ethos" into "the imperial adventure," for having failed "to create new forms of political life for her own citizens," and for having created "one and a half million refugees." In the latter context, he called Israel a "criminal community" and a "nightmare that manufactures human waste."

HE ADDED that were he a "conscientious Jew in Israel I would have to live as I was living in America, that is, in resistance against the state." In Israel as in the U.S., he claimed, such a posture would result in his being "hunted by the police, or in prison." He accused Jewish leaders of ignoring Vietnam.

Berrigan's address was printed in American Report, a bi-weekly publication of Clergy and Laity Concerned, a group which came into being to oppose the Vietnam war. American Report also carried Rabbi Hertzberg's reply to Berrigan.

Hertzberg ridiculed Berrigan's assertion that there is a big gap in thinking between the "Zionist leaders" and the "majority of the American Jewish community."

"This distinction of his," Hertzberg says, "has absolutely nothing to do with the truth. Israel is supported by the overwhelming majority of the American Jews... In re. liberalism and the Jewish leaders, more of the major organizations of the American Jewish community pronounced formally against the Vietnam war than were to be found anywhere else in America..."

"Berrigan seems capable of thinking about the Jews only if he can break the connection in his own mind between the leaders and the led and then condemn the leaders for being insufficiently 'universal' because they are concerned for the survival and the quality of life of their own community."

The rabbi addresses himself to Berrigan's "facts" on Israel, such as the "failure to create new forms of political and social life." He asks: "Has Berrigan never heard of the kibbutz?"

Berrigan told his audience of Arab graduates that Israel has created "an elite of millionaires, generals and entrepreneurs." Responds Hertzberg: "Has he never been told that there is less variation from mean income even in imperfect Israel than anywhere else in the Western world?"

AS FOR Berrigan's claim that Israeli workers are exploited: "Doesn't he know that the Histadrut, the confederation of labor unions, comes very close to running the country? Nowhere in the world are the salaries of professionals and academics as little different from those of skilled workers as in Israel."

Berrigan, Hertzberg noted, found Israel deficient in "the Jewish passion for the poor and the forgotten." The rabbi comments: "What does he think that Israel's hospitality since 1948 to hundreds of thousands of refugees from the Arab lands has represented? For that matter, why are Israel and the world Jewish community fighting so hard with Soviet Russia about the right of emigration?"

Berrigan, says Hertzberg, "hurls the problem of Arab refugees at Jews as if it were original sin, of which the Zionists alone are guilty from beginning to end. As a matter of fact, the Arab refugee problem began in the war of 1948 in large part because the Arabs, who were making war against the UN decision for the partition of Palestine — a decision which the Jews accepted — chose to leave as part of a tactical maneuver."

"To the alleviation of the misery of the refugees, the Arab states, for all their oil millions, have contributed almost nothing. The lion's share of the bill has been paid by the government that Father Berrigan delights in denouncing, that of the United States of America. None of this do we hear from Berrigan."

AS FOR SOLUTION to the refugee problem, Rabbi Hertzberg says: "Concretely, as anyone who would get off a soapbox to walk the Middle Eastern roads and see the realities would know, the

Israel attack by Berrigan stirs replies

Arab refugee problem cannot be solved by the mechanical expedient of putting more than a million hostile and angry people into the pre-1967 borders of the state of Israel. I grant Father Berrigan that there is injustice in this situation ... It demands large scale resettlement, with the aid of the international community.

"This is a notion which Berrigan cannot countenance. Better, he asserts, that an end be made of the state of Israel ... than any accommodation."

Referring to many modern refugee problems, such as "many millions of Moslems displaced from India in the very same years ... an issue which long ago ceased to be the occasion for moral hysterics ... the Hindus recently expelled by Idi Amin," Hertzberg says: "Somehow or other, even absolutist political consciences have come to the conclusion that in the real world, national tensions are sometimes best solved by population exchange, especially if the culprits are kosher 'non-aligned' states such as India or Uganda. Only Israel must be refused the right to exist at all, because its existence requires some accommodations."

BUT, THE RABBI continued, "enough of Berrigan's horror stories. What is the truth about Israel?" He spoke of the nation's purpose, to return to its ancient biblical land and roots to provide continuity of community.

"The tragedy of the Jewish-Arab encounter," he said, "is not, as Berrigan would have it, that the Arabs were right and the Jews were wrong, but that both were right. The reality is in ... proximate justice."

"Even the Arabs know that Israel's universities and scientific institutions, its hospitals and its publications are among the ornaments of the civilized world. At this very moment, the Arabs are willing to allow their prisoners of war to remain in Israeli hands, while they mistreat and even kill Israeli prisoners, because they trust Israel to be decent ... It is clear that even Syria has a higher opinion of Israel's morality than does Daniel Berrigan."

Hertzberg cited "a serious Christian thinker," the late theologian Reinhold Niebuhr, who pondered the Middle East situation "and understood that each of the parties to it had substantial right on his side. He understood in particular that Jews and Judaism could not survive in this stormy 20th century without a center in their ancient land. ... With heaviness of heart, Niebuhr added that Arab dominance in Palestine was not equally vital to the future of either the Arabs or the Islamic tradition."

Hertzberg concluded by saying that after pondering Berrigan's words, he has "reluctantly come to a sad conclusion. Underneath the language of the New Left, Daniel Berrigan has no patience with the Jewish community, and judges it to be horribly sinful for living with some semblance of normalcy in the world. He wishes it would go away and leave to him the role of the true Jew."

IN HIS Commonweal article, Michael Novak zeroes in on Berrigan's phrase "The fate of the Vietnamese was as unimportant to the Zionists in our midst as was the state of the Palestinians."

Comments the Catholic educator: "But Rabbi Abraham Heschel was the greatest Zionist in our midst ... Zion is home, Zion is roots, Zion is heritage, Zion is identity. To be a Zionist is now virtually identical with being Jewish — and the difference between the two is not for a Christian to adjudicate. There is a tone of voice, 'the Zionists in our midst,' which is as ominous as any tone the human voice can utter."

Like Hertzberg, Novak says "Both Arabs and Israelis have right on their side," but adds "but the issue for the Israelis, as it is not for the Arabs, is survival."

Novak offers an analysis, as a Catholic, of Berrigan's world view.

"The fascination of the Catholic left with authority," he says, "with huge sun-blocking bureaucratic forces, with evils in administrative structure, with signs of doom, is all-too-Catholic, all-too-clerical. Cardinal Ottaviani himself could not have imagined for the modern world a fate so dizzying and doom-laden as our so-called left. And to find the left mesmerized by arma-

New churchwomen leader knows her way around the organization

Mrs. Elrena Chandler, who was installed Friday as new president of Long Beach Church Women United, is not exactly unfamiliar with the hard working ecumenical organization. She was secretary, then treasurer for three years, and vice president for three more years, before succeeding Mrs. Barbara Hoepfl in the top spot. In a chat this week, Mrs. Chandler, a member of Grant Chapel A.M.E. Church, said she has seen the role of women recognized more and more in the church world.

"And that has been on all levels," she added. "The churches have really made strides here, especially among minority women. They are beginning to see people as people."

The often maligned women's liberation movement, she believes, has played some gaddy role in the changing consciousness of men. "Though I'm not gung ho for women's lib," Mrs. Chandler said with a smile, "it must be said that the movement has made males take another look at themselves and at relationships."

A native of Texas, she grew up in Hobbs, New Mexico, and came to this area in 1938. She is married to John Chandler, a retired city employee.

Mrs. Chandler is treasurer of the Boyd Memorial Foundation, named for the late pastor of Grant Chapel, Rev. Dr. Jesse Boyd, and is keenly interested in the Foundation's pioneering school project designed to enrich the lives of boys and girls in the Central Area through ethnic appreciation, in the context of Christian love.

"I can guarantee any volunteers who want to help, or those who wish to contribute to its work, a rewarding experience," she says. "It is wonderful to see children helped."

Church Women United has a place for the Boyd Foundation's work on its own modest budget.

Outside of church and church-related activities, the new women's leader is active in the Poly High Neighborhood Project, designed to upgrade the housing in the school's vicinity ... LES RODNEY

State Assembly in Anaheim

Twenty Long Beach churchwomen will attend the 40th annual state assembly of Church Women United Friday in the New Disneyland Hotel, Anaheim.

Speakers include Sister Mary Luke Tobin, who will discuss urban crises; Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, who will speak on the concerns of the aging; Cesar Chavez, who will report on the status of the farmworkers in the state, and the Rev. Dr. Jilsuo Morikawa, American Baptist executive who will be the afternoon speaker, on the topic "The Christian and the Responsible Use of Power."

ments, by espionage, by prisons, by spies, by power elites, by industrial complexes, by millionaires (as if the world had only begun yesterday), and making no distinctions whatsoever between regimes, cultures, histories and concrete situations, is to feel again what one felt a dozen years ago in curial circles in Rome: an iron-tight, complacent, impenetrable, simple 'truth.'"

"Is the final destination of the left," Novak asks in conclusion, "after so many romantic but attractive moments, anti-Semitism? The thought is disturbing to the depths. Memories of Father Feeney and Father Coughlin are not yet cold. Will the record of American priests who become active in politics once more end in fanaticism, under the guise of 'prophecy'?"

Africa bishop tells of work

Bishop H. H. Brookins, former Los Angeles pastor and community leader, now the African Methodist Episcopal presiding prelate for five African nations, will speak Sunday, 11 a.m. in Grant Chapel A.M.E. Church, 1129 Alamitos Ave., climaxing a church rally for African relief. Brookins' district includes Malawi, Rhodesia, Tanzania, Zaire and Zambia. The bishop will describe the situation in those countries, and his work.

Catholic '1st'

PESCARA, Italy (AP) — Lucia di Nisio, 35, has become the first Italian woman authorized by the Roman Catholic Church to distribute the Host to those taking communion at mass.

"I feel the Lord called me into deaf ministry because of my own personal condition," he said. His wife urged him to learn sign language. "I resisted at first," he said. "But as time went on the Lord

Music is in the hearts at Silent Baptist Church

By SHARON MURPHY Ridder News Service

WICHITA, Kan.—There is no piano, no organ and only one songbook in Silent Baptist Church. And even during a service the sanctuary is still.

The reason becomes apparent as the observer learns it is a church designed for the deaf and hard of hearing.

"Everything is in sign language," said Rev. Kendall Wilcoxson. "When we sing the congregation watches me and follows my signs."

The Silent Church began in 1969 with Wilcoxson, his wife, Lily, and nine others in an old garage. Since then church has grown to 42 members.

"Most of the people in the congregation became deaf as a result of a fever when they were five or six," said Wilcoxson. "A few were born deaf."

Wilcoxson was not born deaf. He had worked on jet planes in the Air Force and the roar of the engines caused him to lose most of his hearing. After receiving a medical discharge from the service for his hearing disability, he decided to go into the ministry.

"I feel the Lord called me into deaf ministry because of my own personal condition," he said. His wife urged him to learn sign language. "I resisted at first," he said. "But as time went on the Lord showed me differently. After finishing the course, I felt the real need for a deaf church."

The church has made arrangements with Temple Baptist Church for those children in the congregation who hear to have services.

"We feel it is much to the advantage of the hearing children to go to a hearing church," said Wilcoxson.

"Sign language is very limited. There are only 2,000 words in it. If they go to a 'hearing church' they can learn more and then, since they know sign language, they can help their parents learn more."

The church sponsors a women's quartet. It is asked often to perform at other churches. A tape recording of the song is played while the quartet "sings" it in sign language.

Course traces mystery faiths

Enrollments are still open for a UCLA Extension course exploring "The Mystery Religions," through March 18, 7:30 to 10 p.m., in Marymount College, Palos Verdes. The 11-week course will survey beliefs and practices in Near Eastern, Egyptian and Graeco-Roman mystery religions (approximately 600 B.C. to 300 A.D.) as found in literary, archaeological and epigraphical sources.

Wilcoxson said when he first decided to found a deaf church he met with a lot of skepticism. Few people thought a deaf church would be self-supporting.

Today, the church is not only self-supporting, but it assists six overseas missions.

With 42 members, however, the church can't support a full time minister yet, so Wilcoxson also works at Cessna Aircraft. He began working for the church without a salary.

"The church just increased my salary to $50 a month," he said. "That may not sound like much, but for the people of the church, it's a lot."

Queen vespers — no charge

Sunday vespers aboard the Queen Mary at 6 p.m. will feature a 55-voice combined choir from Community Congregational and Bethel Lutheran churches of Los Alamitos, and United Church of Christ of La Mirada, together with vocalists from Long Beach St. Luke's Episcopal.

The vespers, a regular feature, are sponsored by the Queen Mary Wedding Chapel in cooperation with the Long Beach Ministerial Association, in the chapel on the Promenade Deck. There is no charge for boarding the Queen for the services.

Adjusting to other people

I was walking through a large industrial plant with a man famous in the personnel field. "What," I asked him, "do you consider the necessary qualities for a successful career in industry?"

His reply was prompt. "Number one is the ability to adjust to and to work harmoniously with other people. Number two, have common, ordinary, everyday intelligence. Number three is the motivation to work hard, to apply oneself, to give the job all it demands. And the number four requirement is technical skill."

I was surprised at the order of his listing and would have expected him to put technical skill first and intelligence second. But, instead, this expert in successful human beings told me that people succeed or fail, first of all, to the extent they are able to adjust to other people, to get along with them in harmony.

FORTUNATELY personality adjustment is a skill which anyone can learn. And learning it consists, first, in emphasizing the points of agreement and similarity, rather than differences or disagreements. And of course it is important to emphasize the best in people.

In a divorce case, the quarrelsome couple was before a judge to settle the details of the division of their joint property. The last item on their list was their wedding picture.

"He's not going to get that picture," the wife told the jurist. "It's the best picture of me ever taken. I'm going to keep it."

VISUALS FOR 'REVELATION'

"Bringing the Bible alive" is the aim of Rev. Dr. William J. McIlhenny, pastor of Bethany Baptist Church, 2250 Clark Ave., as he begins use of visuals to illustrate his message from the Bible Sunday at 6:30 p.m.

The films are used much as a news commentator illustrates news items on television. At Bethany, they will hopefully give viewers an opportunity to "see" the geographical, historical and cultural settings of Biblical locations in the Book of Revelation. All are invited.

"The judge held the picture up and looked at it speculatively. 'I can see it's a fine picture of each of you. How long ago was it taken?'"

"Twenty years ago," they answered together.

The judge continued to examine the photograph, looking up now and then to study the acrimonious pair. "You certainly were a nice looking couple. I never saw a prettier girl. The face of this girl is sweet, her eyes kindly." He looked directly at the woman. "You HAVE changed, haven't you?"

"What do you mean?" she bridled.

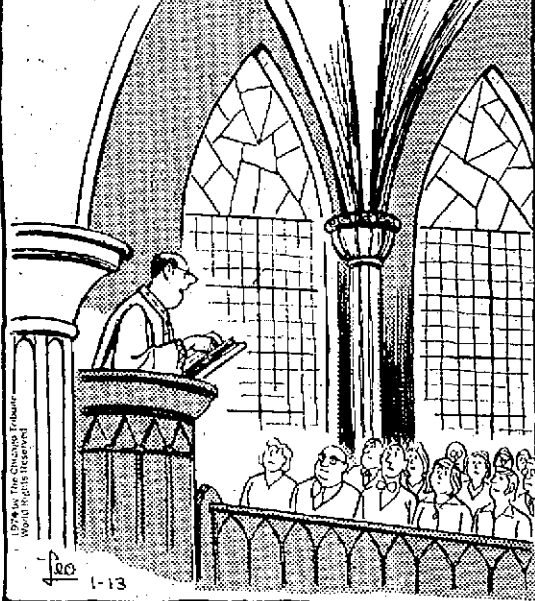

"You would still be pretty if you had that same sweet look," he said. Then he turned to the man. "You seemed a fine, idealistic fellow here in this picture. But I don't see that in your face now. You both had something when this picture was taken that I do not see in you now," the judge sighed regretfully. "I guess the only solution is to cut it in half." And he picked up a pair of scissors.

They both stopped him. "Let us have the picture, your Honor, and give us a few minutes to talk it over," they said. They went into his private chambers and when they came out they actually looked different. "We see now that we've magnified our differences," they explained. And they went away resolved to get back to the basic unity the wise judge had found in their wedding picture.

ALSO IN THE effective technique of adjusting to other people is development of a real, honest-to-goodness, genuine esteem for them. Learn to treat every person as though he mattered, because he does. Lord Chesterfield wrote to his son: "Make every person like himself a little better and I promise that he will like you very much indeed."

In every personal relationship there is a sure way to get along successfully with your fellow man and that is to ask yourself this question: "How would I like to be treated?" Then treat the other person exactly that way. Of course, this powerful idea is not mine. It is a basic concept in the greatest book on personal adjustment ever written. It's as simple as the words, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." That is the secret of adjusting to other people.

CHURCH HUMOR

"Today is the first Sunday after Epiphany, even tho many of you think of it as Super Sunday."

GOINGS ON

"Children of the Day," a family group of five which has traveled widely and become known through recordings, will present a mix of classical and folk rock music Sunday, 7 p.m. in BIXBY KNOLLS CHRISTIAN, 1240 E. Carson St. They use piano, guitar and electric bass accompaniment, plus Christian testimony.

MOUNT OLIVET LUTHERAN, 4405 E. South St., is celebrating its 20th anniversary this week with the help of Tim Goble's Jesus Way Evangelical Assn., and tonight at 7:30 is Youth Night, with all invited.

Mike Sampson and his "Christ in Youth Team," a musical group of young men and women, will be at NORTH BELLFLOWER CHURCH OF CHRIST, 14913 S. Clark St., tonight at 7, Sunday at 9:30 and 10:45 a.m. and 6:30 p.m.

"Sri Sathya Sai Baba on Philosophy" will be the lecture topic of Camille Svensson Sunday, 3 p.m. at THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY, in YWCA, Pacific and Sixth.

Rosalind Rinker, author of the best-selling "Prayer-Conversing With God," will conduct a prayer workshop open to the public Friday and Saturday, Jan. 18, 19, at 7:30 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. Saturday, in FIRST UNITED METHODIST OF ORANGE, 161 S. Orange St.

Services for Rev. Olson, 68

Services were held this week in Forest Lawn, Glendale, for Rev. Arthur M. Olson, visitation pastor of Long Beach Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity, who died Sunday at the age of 68.

Rev. Olson came to Long Beach from Our Saviour's Lutheran of Patterson, Calif., where he was pastor. He leaves his wife, Esther, a daughter, Mrs. Carole May and a grandson.

Briefly . . .

President's giving, H.S. Bible study OK

BILLY GRAHAM, who has refused to criticize any of President Nixon's actions, was moved to say that he was "surprised at the small amount he reported giving to charities in relation to his total income." Reference was contributions amounting to about one-tenth of one per cent of income, with nothing at all contributed to the President's church in two of the four years.

The Biblical norm of a tithe is 10 per cent of one's income. Other ministers were more blunt than Graham, including radio preacher Carl McIntire, who commented: "No church could possibly survive if all of its members followed this type of practice. No minister in the country who is a pastor of a church dependent upon the contributions of its members could be other than shocked by what came out."

LONG BEACH'S pioneering released time religious education program, including the three major sections of the Christian community (Catholic, evangelical Protestant, Council of Churches) will celebrate its 30th birthday on Jan. 27th with a program at First Baptist Church, 10th and Pine, starting at 3 p.m. A former Vietnam War POW will be featured speaker, and children in the current classes will participate. Former students will be given recognition. The program has served no less than 100,000 children since its inception in 1944.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL Church, and Long Beach area church life, will miss Karyn Schmidt, energetic youth worker who last year won the Spotlight Award as outstanding church youth.

Karyn is heading for Germany where she will be a recreation program director for Army personnel in Germany.

ONE OF THE letters in Covenant Presbyterian's signboard at Third and Atlantic broke and fell off. It was the letter "P" in "Preaching" so the sign wound up announcing that Dr. Burcham was "reaching." After a good laugh, the pastor opined that all things considered, the word "reaching" is not so bad in terms of what a minister is supposed to do.

ENROLLMENT IN 20 Lutheran seminaries in the U.S. and Canada declined three per cent in 1973. And the number of full-time undergraduate students at 36 Lutheran four-year colleges and universities decreased by 2.19, figures which are not calamitous, but which may add a little tension to those planning the new Christ College Lutheran in Irvine.

As might have been expected with the still-raging controversy between President Preus and the faculty, the Missouri Synod's Concordia Seminary in St. Louis showed the largest decline, with a drop of 45 students. However, to keep perspective, its total enrollment of 612 keeps it number one among Lutheran seminaries in North America.

One Lutheran college—California Concordia in Oakland, a junior college—was closed in 1973, and two others dropped their church affiliations. Waterloo Lutheran in Ontario dropped its affiliation, and so did Luther College (1) in Regina. Colleges everywhere, of course, with or without religious affiliations, are having nothing but financial troubles these days. On the brighter side, enrollment in 53 Lutheran high schools was at 18,655, a gain of 397.

A STRONG presentation last week convinced trustees of the Huntington Beach Union High School District that student religious groups should be extended the same rights as other campus clubs. The board went on record approving a policy that permits student groups to meet for Bible study during the lunch hour.

In 1970, County Council ruled that religious groups of students could not meet during school hours, including recess and the lunch hour. So more may be heard of all this.

The successful presentation was made by Bob Lewis, a Westminster pastor; Lowell Spangler, a high school teacher and chairman of the Citizens for Parents Rights Committee; and Keith Arledge, a youth minister who graduated from district schools. They were backed by about 100 students who attended.

NOTED IN the newsletter of Los Altos United Methodist: "ALL YOU PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN THINKING 'SNOW' CAN NOW STOP!"

Sorry, if we get it after noon on Thursday, we cannot consider it for publication in the Saturday religion section.

Nixon pastor says role is one of support

Rev. T. Eugene Coffin, pastor of the East Whittier Friends Church, in which President Nixon holds membership, says a number of Quakers across the nation have questioned continuation of that membership.

However, Coffin writes in the Christian Century, "the church concluded it would be an unChristian act" and the meeting's role should be one of "prayerful support and counsel."

"The fellowship's giving support to members does not imply a condoning of any wrongdoing on the part of a member," Coffin said. "Rather, the responsibility of Christians toward one another requires the kind of spiritual climate in which a wayward member can confess sin, repent of it and start life anew."

As for the President's troubles, "we feel he has been convicted in the minds of many before all the evidence is in. We want to keep the lines of communication open so that our concerns can be shared in regard to decisions to be made by him."

Christian Science

children CAN'T help wondering.

And they wonder a lot about God. They seem to have a natural awareness that He's here, and that He's important. But they want to know more.

In the Christian Science Sunday School, God's nearness and goodness become practical realities to children. They study and discuss weekly Bible Lessons; and how to apply their truths each day. They learn to look to God for His unfailing help.

No need for your child to go on wondering. Let him start discovering, at our Sunday School. We'll be delighted to welcome him and his friends.

SMOKE AND FLAMES rise from oil storage tanks at Mobil Oil Corp. facilities at Port Neches. The fire was believed sparked by lightning and was under control by Friday night.

Texas oil fire under control

PORT NECHES, Tex. (AP) — A lightning-sparked oil fire that spread to six tanks at a Mobil Oil Corp. facility was brought under control Friday night by firemen aided by friendly weather, officials said.

"It is contained," said company spokesman Roy Dickerson as bulldozers finished building a levee around the 400-square yard area where flames still could be seen rising from the six oil tanks. But later in the night firemen put three of the fires out and continued working on the other three.

Only one person was slightly injured in the 14-hour effort by firemen from area cities and by specialists led by oil fire expert "Red" Adair. They had to contend not only with fire but with bubbling crude oil that overflowed earthen levees and threatened to both spread the fire and damage a nearby river.

Dickerson said there was still a possibility the fire could spread to other tanks in this southeast Texas area dominated by oil-related complexes.

By early evening a huge pall of black smoke with bright flames shining through occasionally could be seen for miles around.

One of the tanks that caught fire and burned so intensely that firemen were driven back for several hours held 20,000 barrels of crude oil. Another held 70,000. Three of the tanks were nearly empty, Dickerson said, while the amount in the sixth tank could not be determined.

OIL FIRMS FIGHT CRITICISM

20.5 million a year earlier. Gulf reported crude oil stocks and supplies in shipment at 18.48 million barrels Jan. 1 compared with 16.7 million barrels in 1972. Gasoline stocks this year were 16.87 million barrels against 17.21 million. Distillate supplies stood at 16.44 million barrels against 16.03 million barrels a year earlier.

Shell announced that, as of Jan. 1, its crude oil inventory was 20.2 million barrels, up 700,000 from a year ago. Its motor-gasoline inventory was 17.4 million barrels, up 1.2 million, while its inventories of home heating oil, diesel fuel, jet fuel and kerosene totaled 15.1 million barrels, up 2.2 million. A Shell spokesman said the company "believes its minor gain in product inventories reflects the warmer winter thus far and the efforts of the American public to conserve energy."

The statistics released thus far by individual companies are in agreement with recent weekly reports by the American Petroleum Institute that show crude oil stocks and imports declining, lower stocks of gasoline, and fuel-oil increasing.

The decline in crude oil imports and stocks has been attributed by the companies to the Arab embargo. The increase in fuel oil is the result of increased refinery runs as ordered by the government as well as warm weather so far this winter, the companies have said. The decline in gasoline stocks follows from a government request to the companies to produce less gas from their refinery operations according to the companies.

Beside raising gasoline and fuel-oil prices, Exxon advanced the price of heavy fuel oil by $3.75 to $4.25 a barrel, depending on sulphur content. Jet fuel prices were raised by 2.16 cents a gallon. The company said that the new prices reflected the pass-through of higher costs for foreign and domestic crude oil, imported products and other raw materials, as allowed by the Federal Energy Office.

Texaco, the nation's largest marketer of gasoline, is the only major oil company that has not yet announced January price increases.

MILITARY SPYING TOLD

All sources interviewed by the Times agreed that Kissinger shared Young's belief that Pentagon officials were anxious to obtain — by covert methods if necessary — details of the White House's far-reaching secret deliberations with nations nominally considered America's enemies by military men. "Laird had a definite feeling that he was being cut off from a lot of stuff and I know it's true," one former Kissinger aide said.

The highest ranking officer reassigned, sources said, was Rear Adm. Robert O. Welander, who was then serving as the liaison officer between the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the National Security Council.

Neither Welander nor Laird could be reached Friday, but Moorer denounced the allegation that he had received classified information through indirect channels as "ludicrous."

During Young's investigation, sources said, he was ordered to report periodically to Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., then Kissinger's key deputy in the National Security Council and now the White House chief of staff. This was the first indication that Young, a former aide to Kissinger, maintained a professional relationship with the council while serving with the plumbbers. Kissinger has repeatedly denied any knowledge of the activities of the plumbbers.

An account of the secret White House investigation was initially published Friday by the Chicago Tribune, which said that the case was the "mysterious" national security matter so often cited by the President in an attempt to keep the operations of the plumbbers secret.

In a statement issued Friday from Nixon's home in San Clemente, the White House said that the published news accounts "convey an incorrect impression of the knowledge and actions of the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; that the matter was investigated at the time; that the source of these leaks was a low-level employee whose clerical tasks gave him access to highly classified information and that today's news stories are based on fragmentary accounts of the incident."

A New York Times investigation, however, had previously established that there was a wide diversity of opinion among high-level White House aides over the significance and accuracy of the plumbbers' findings.

One group, while acknowledging that some military men assigned to the National Security Council had copied documents to which they did not formally have access, described the incident as "just plain in-house rinky-dink stuff" and said that no link had been made between the officers and any public dissemination of classified papers, including the India-Pakistan documents.

Another group, which includes some of Young's former colleagues and personal acquaintances, said that the plumbbers "really did uncover a ring of some sort inside the NSC." One source said one of the military men working in the council was "actually going through other people's files."

The sources all agreed, however, that Young's inquiry into possible wrongdoing inside the council did not begin until late 1971, after the publication of the Anderson papers, and could not have been involved, as reported, in Nixon's decision to set up the plumbbers unit six months earlier, which he has at times given as his reason.

The Times investigation also determined that those few officials who were appraised of the National Security Council inquiry were divided about the propriety of keeping it secret.

Some White House advisers had reportedly urged that details of the NSC inquiry be made public last year, apparently to buttress the White House's contention that significant national security issues truly were at stake in the plumbbers' activities. But the advocates of disclosure were overruled by a faction headed by J. Fred Buzhardt Jr., the White House counsel, who was then deeply involved in Watergate matters.

But it was Buzhardt, sources said, who was also responsible for coordinating the Pentagon's activities in connection with the plumbbers' investigation in late 1971. At that time, Buzhardt was the general counsel of the Department of Defense.

White House and Justice Department officials who have been fully appraised of the plumbbers' inquiry did agree during interviews, however, that the questions about the military's activities inside the National Security Council needed to be explored in public.

One clue to the incompleteness of the plumbbers' inquiry was provided by Nixon during a news conference on Feb. 10, 1972, three months after publication of the India-Pakistan papers by Anderson.

"We have a lot of circumstantial evidence," on the identity of Mr. Anderson's sources," the President said, adding that "As a lawyer, I can say that we do not have evidence that I consider adequate or the attorney general considers adequate to take to court."

Five days later Anderson publicly declared that the White House in effect, had fired the wrong man by "banishing" Welander from his position with the Joint Chiefs to sea duty.

Welander was subsequently reassigned back to the Pentagon, and is now serving as assistant Deputy chief of naval operations for plans and policy, considered to be a choice Navy assignment.

In a telephone interview Friday from Chicago, Anderson reiterated his belief that "they did not get my source." He also ridiculed the plumbbers' apparent belief that he had been provided the India-Pakistan papers by the military.

Mission completion expected

Skylab ready if gyro fails

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — An ailing spacecraft gyroscope "can fail at any time" and force the Skylab 3 astronauts down within five or six days, the Skylab program director said here Friday.

William C. Schneider, the director, said, however, "right now there's nothing at all that gives us any doubt" about Skylab 3 completing its planned 84 days in space.

"The gyroscope could color our judgment on this," he added.

Skylab 3 astronauts Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue were in the 57th day of their marathon mission Friday. They have four weeks to go before their Feb. 8 splashdown.

One of Skylab's three control gyros, called control moment gyro (CMG) 1, failed early in the mission. CMG 2 later developed the same distress signals that preceded the failure of CMG 1. CMG 3 is performing normally.

The gyros are used to control the spacecraft stability and for maneuvers. The 118-foot-long Skylab requires at least two working gyros to maintain control.

"CMG two has not improved, but it hasn't gotten any worse," said Schneider during a news conference. "It can fail at any time. In the event of failure ... we would come back in an expedition, but not emergency basis."

He said the astronauts would have to return to earth within "five or six days." This is far shorter than an earlier prediction of "several weeks."

Should the gyro fail, Schneider said, the Skylab space station would immediately come under the control of small thruster rockets on the Apollo command ship, the craft used to ferry the astronauts between earth and the space station. The Apollo craft is docked at one end of the Skylab.

Schneider said there is "ample" propellant in the command ship to permit

"an orderly return" of the astronauts.

He said splashdown also would be timed to permit the astronauts to land in the Pacific Ocean prime recovery area. The USS New Orleans, the prime recovery ship, already is standing by.

Dr. Royce Hawkins, the chief Skylab doctor, said the men of Skylab 3 are in excellent health and "maybe a little better in some respects" than the Skylab 2 astronauts were at this point in the earlier mission.

Carr, Pogue and Gibson spent Friday conducting solar observations, medical experiments, studies of the comet Kohoutek and an earth resources photo run.

Skylab 3 becomes history's longest spaceflight at 6:10 p.m. PDT Monday.

Gunman slain in L.B. police shootout following robbery

By TOM WILLMAN
And MIKE JELF

Long Beach Police shot and killed a bandit Friday night in an exchange of gunfire after being alerted by a passerby to a hold-up literally taking place on stage—in a glass-front, well-lit West-side store.

The gunman, pronounced dead on arrival at 9:40 p.m. in St. Mary Medical Center, was identified through papers he was carrying as Bobby R. Maple, 24, of 618 W. 38th St.

Police Lt. Dick Roberts said Maple, who was armed with a .38-caliber revolver, was wounded at least once in the head during brief shoot-out in front of the Pay-Less Shoe Store, 455 W. Willow St.

During the robbery, said Roberts, the gunman pistol-whipped store manager Ken Fornator who had been forced to lie on the floor along with a store clerk and a woman patron.

Fornator, 22, was rushed to Pacific Hospital for treatment of a gashed head, police said.

According to Roberts, the robbery began at 8:55 p.m. when the bandit, wearing a stocking mask and brandishing a four-inch revolver, entered and demanded all the register cash—some $500.

The gunman then demanded the watch and ring of the manager. He had ordered the manager and a woman clerk to lie on the floor when a woman patron entered, said Roberts, and she also was ordered to lie down.

Collecting the valuables from all three, the black gunman pistol-whipped the prone manager, Roberts said.

Then, for an estimated four minutes, Maple stood over Fornator, cursing him with racial slurs, Roberts continued.

Throughout the robbery, the bandit ignored the fact that the entire drama was taking place in full view of the street, witnesses said. And a passerby had seen people lying on the floor and had called police.

When the bandit emerged from the store, heading for his car parked in front of the building, four officers were waiting for him, said Homicide Det. Sgt. A.G. Branson.

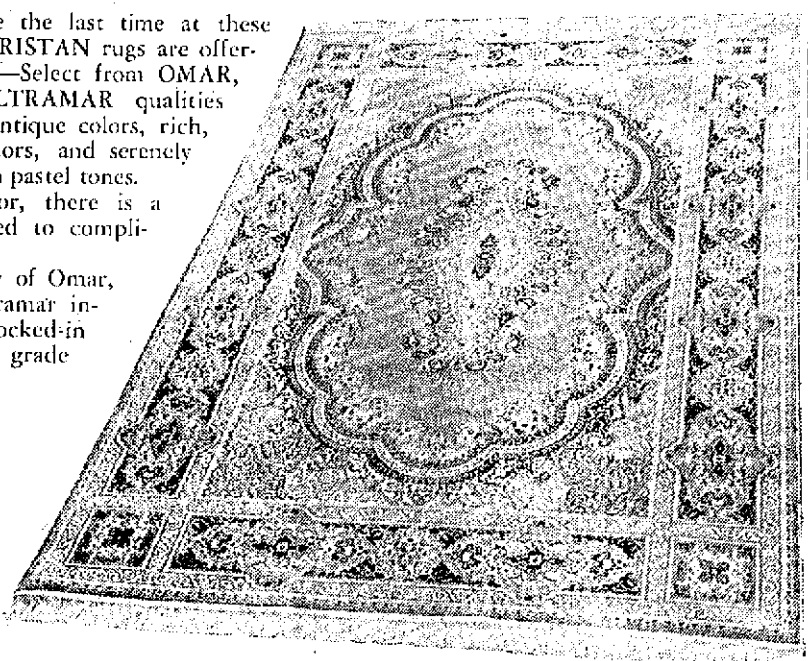

At the store's northeast corner waited Officers John Kilroy and Mike Kunst. Officers Paul Seminara and Bobby Koch were opposite the building's south corner, across the street, said Branson.

According to police, the gunman started backing out of the store. As he emerged, either Kilroy or Kunst yelled the command, "Freeze!" The robber responded with one shot toward the officers who had yelled. Then he turned and ran toward the other two who he may not have seen.

L.B. honors 23 for 25 years of service

Plaques noting 25 years of employment with the City of Long Beach were presented to 23 men and women Friday night at the city's sixth annual service awards dinner aboard the Queen Mary.

The years represented by the combined service of the honorees would date back to 1977 B.C., the group was told by Barney J. Walczak, city director of personnel and employee relations.

In a special presentation, Councilman Russell Rubley was given a 20-year service pin. It recognized his five years on the City Council and prior service as a sports official with the Recreation Department.

Two sets of brothers and one uncle-nephew relationship were among the city employees receiving the plaques from Mayor Edwin W. Wade and City Manager John R. Mansell.

The brother combinations are Maceo Elliott of the Recreation Department and Scipio Elliott of the Queen Mary Department, and Jack Cobb of the Park Department and Charlie Cobb of the Harbor Department. Henry Vanderpool of the Harbor Department is the uncle of Ernest E. Vanderpool of the Public Service Department.

The Fire Department had the largest number of members who completed 25 years city employment in 1973. Twenty-four firemen received awards. This was followed by 22 recipients in the Public Service Department, 19 in the Police Department and 18 in the Harbor Department.

L.B. studies stand on PUC probe of air fare hike bid

Long Beach's stand on a State Public Utilities Commission investigation of airline rate increases to offset higher aviation fuel costs will be discussed Monday by the city's Bureau of Franchises.

The bureau will meet at 9:30 a.m. in the City Hall council chamber.

Louis Possner, chief engineer of the bureau, said the PUC has consolidated applications by Pacific Southwest Airlines and Western Airlines, and proposes to inquire into: — The magnitude of fuel cost increases which airlines face.

— Costs saved by changes in airline operational patterns resulting from the fuel crisis.

— Methods of adjusting air common carrier rates to offset fuel cost.

Possner said it appears the PUC will investigate

"such problems as the suspension of service from Long Beach and other areas, supposedly due to the fuel crisis."

"It appears the city has a vital concern in this case if it is to prevent continued suspension of service in Long Beach by Pacific Southwest Airlines, based upon alleged inability of that airline to obtain jet fuel," Possner said in a preliminary report to bureau members.

Pacific Hospital has new nurses director

Georgena B. Bitgood, R. N., has been named director of nurses at Pacific Hospital of Long Beach.

She succeeds Nellie Mae Shideler, R. N., assistant administrator for nursing services, and director of nurses for more than 17 years. Mrs. Shideler, a nurse since 1935, retired last month.

Ms. Bitgood is an honors graduate of Orange County General Hospital school of nursing and holds an associate of arts degree from Fullerton Junior College. She also is a graduate of the flight nurse school at Air University's aviation school of medicine in Montgomery, Ala.

IN ADDITION, she was granted a lifetime teaching credential last year from the Teacher Education Preparation Program, division of vocational education, UCLA. She is a January 1974 graduate of Long Beach State University, having earned a baccalaureate degree in vocational education.

Burglars who pried off a restroom window to gain entry took $700 in coins from the Gold Mint Beer Bar, 390 W. Anaheim St., Long Beach police said Friday.

GEORGENA B. BITGOOD

NELLIE MAE SHIDELER

Her professional nursing experience includes work in the Air Force Nurses Corps in California and Puerto Rico. She has been a supervisor at St. Joseph's Hospital, Bryan, Tex., and of Anaheim General Hospital. Prior to joining the staff at Pacific, she served as a faculty member at Long Beach City College's department of health technologies.

Ms. Bitgood is a member of the American Association of Critical Care Nurses, Orange County Heart Association, American Nurses' Association and District 18 of the California Nurses' Association.

Mrs. Shideler remains on the advisory board of Long Beach City College. Last month she was named "Boss of the Year" by the local chapter of the American Business Women's Association. She has been a director of the California Nurses' Association and president of the local chapter of the nurses association.

Jack Appelt, 1132 Cartagena St., told officers a stereo, camera and appliances with a total value of $735 were taken from his home by burglars who forced a kitchen window to gain entry, Long Beach police said Friday.

Sanctions at issue Students eye LBSU sports case suit

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

The student government at Long Beach State University is planning court action to delay sanctions against the college's sports program, LBSU's student body president said Friday.

If that doesn't work, the students will consider slashing the football and basketball budgets for next year, according to President F. Carlos Navejas.

"We have to move to protect the Associated Students' investment in the athletic program," he said.

THE NATIONAL Collegiate Athletic Association placed LBSU's football and basketball programs on probation for "not less than three years" Sunday.

Those programs are largely supported by student body fees that are administered by the elected Associated Students government.

Of this year's $900,000 A.S. budget, $127,000 was allocated to varsity football and $107,000 to basketball. Baseball, the third largest varsity sport, received $5,200.

"WE HAVE already lost $10,000 to $20,000 in last fall's football program," Navejas said. "We're still not sure exactly how much we lost, but we know it's more than 1972-73."

"We were relying on revenue from the basketball program to make up the football deficit, but we can't get that revenue with the NCAA sanctions imposed."

The sanctions ban LBSU's basketball team from playing in the NCAA Western Regional Playoffs, where gate receipts and television money have enriched the college's sports coffers for four years, Navejas said.

He said he met with lawyers Friday morning and they were optimistic about obtaining a restraining order that would delay the sanctions until the end of this year's basketball season.

Basis of the suit would be that sanctions will cause "irreparable financial damage" to the Associated Students, and that the student government wasn't consulted in deliberations between the NCAA and the college administration, Navejas said.

"It was some of our money that was allegedly misused, but we weren't consulted."

If the A.S. does suffer a big loss in basketball revenues this spring, cutting or terminating the football budget—and perhaps also the basketball budget—will be considered, Navejas said.

"THE A.S. is pro-athletic, but we have to protect our investments," he said.

"We have to look carefully at things such as the football program that consistently lose money."

Any budget cut would have to be approved by the Associated Students Senate. President Stephen Horn would have the final say.

The only other source of money to support the football and basketball program comes from private donations funneled through the 49er Athletic Foundation, which has collected about $80,000 this school year, according to Chuck Boyle, foundation head.

THAT MONEY can go only for grants-in-aid to athletes, which is the largest item in the Associated Students athletic budget, Navejas said.

However, the NCAA sanctions drastically cut the number of grants that can be given, so the Foundation money could only partially substitute for A.S. money if the latter were pulled out.

Dumped truck surfaces in harbor

Port of Los Angeles deputy JoEllen Natow inspects portions of pick-up truck cab Friday after they were discovered at harbor bottom near Berth 158 by Harbor Department diver, Al Hanson, who was making routine check of pilings. Officials said the water was too murky to haul up all of the truck, a late model which was cut into several pieces, but diver Hanson is expected to retrieve the rest Monday. Deputy Natow said all identification had been removed from the truck. She speculated the vehicle may have been stolen, stripped and the remains disposed of in the harbor.

Assessed value of West Beach jumps

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Although only the first section of the West Beach Project is complete, the assessed valuation of the 21-acre area for fiscal 1973-74 is $947,320 greater than it was 10 years ago when covered with old buildings and known as "the jungle."

The increase in assessed valuation means the Long Beach Redevelopment Agency will get $11,828 in "increment" taxes this fiscal year to apply to payment of its bonded indebtedness, Allan A. Robertson, agency executive director, said Friday.

THE FIGURES on assessed valuation and the increment levy were delivered to the Redevelopment Agency by the Los Angeles County auditor-controller's office.

When the area was designated for redevelopment 10 years ago, the assessed valuation was "frozen." Taxes for the city, county, school district and special districts are limited to the assessment for that "base year" of 1962-63.

The taxes on any "increment," or increase in the assessed valuation after that time, go to the Redevelopment agency for payment of the bonded indebtedness until it is paid off. From that point on, the taxes would go to the normal taxing districts and jurisdictions.

Robertson pointed out, however, that even though the assessment is "frozen" at the 1962-63 level as far as city, county and school taxes are concerned, these jurisdictions are now getting more than they were 10 years ago, because their tax rates are higher.

He also emphasized that the higher assessment now in effect covers only the Boise-Cascade development at the southwest corner of Ocean Boulevard and Queen's Way, which is the Wells Fargo Building and the adjacent commercial plaza.

The auditor-controller's report said the assessment for secured property for fiscal 1973-74 is $1,959,980, an increase of $1,048,170 over the base year of 1962-63.

The assessment of unsecured property for fiscal 1973-74 is $14,570, which is a drop of $100,850 from the base year, when there were numerous individual property owners in the area.

TOTAL assessed valuation this fiscal year, however, is $1,974,550, which is an increase of $917,320 over the base year.

The increment levy on secured property this year is $123,515, while that of unsecured property actually shows a decrease of $11,687, which gives the Redevelopment agency its increment levy of $111,828.

Weather at fault as net registration lags

Recent rainstorms put a sort of damper on registration for the Long Beach Recreation Department's adult tennis classes, which start the week of Jan. 28, and department officials warned that the deadline to sign up is next Friday.

Eight daytime and 10 evening classes will offer beginning, intermediate and advanced instruction at various courts throughout the city. Exact schedules and registration forms are available at branch libraries.

Fee for the 10-lesson course is $10, and a check or money order in that amount, payable to the Recreation Commission, must accompany the registration form. Registrations should be sent to the Registration Center, 5117 E. Colorado St.

Instructors for the adult classes will be Eric Allm-croft, Skip Bishop, Pat Paster, Jim Heffron and John Braun.

Classes will be held at Wilson High School, El Dorado Park, Billie Jean King Tennis Center in Recreation Park, Somerset Park and Veterans Park.

Rummage sale

The Protective Council of California Senior Citizens, Inc., will hold a rummage sale from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Thursday at 728 Elm Ave.

Ken Myner, of the Consolidated Medical Systems, Ltd., will speak at a meeting following the rummage sale.

Getting into the 'Spirit of '76'

Lakewood city officials pause Friday before hoisting replica of flag which flew at the Battle of Bennington, Vermont, Aug. 16, 1777, over community's city hall. Bicentennial committee chairman Stan Jensen, left, said the city was merely getting an early start in celebrating 200th anniversary of the United States. He is aided in flag ceremony by City Councilman William Young, center, and Mayor pro tem Wayne Piercy. Jensen said the early Old Glory, which was originally flown about two months after Congress adopted a banner of 13 stars and stripes, will fly in front of the Lakewood City Hall through the year-long bicentennial celebration in 1976.

Coastal panel meeting slated

Regional coastal commissioners will meet at 9 a.m. Monday in the Long Beach Harbor Department's board room to consider three pages of agenda items postponed when their marathon meeting last Monday was adjourned shortly after 11 p.m.

Of the 21 items scheduled for public hearing, however, only three pertain to local construction projects.

Those projects, all of which are proposed for Huntington Beach, include:

—Construction of a 2-story, 4-unit apartment building at 405 18th St., by Joseph N. Shaffer;

—Construction of a 4-unit apartment building at 401 18th St., by Joseph Shaffer; —And, construction of seven, 4-unit apartment buildings at 406, 410, 414, 418, 422 and 426 22nd St. and 225 Seventh St., by Charles Hermansen.

Commissioners have also scheduled a meeting in the Long Beach facility for 9 a.m. Jan. 21. That session, to include consideration of several local developments, will probably last all day, a commission spokesman said.

But David Cassidy, Eve Arden, Shirley Jones and Keenan Wynn, among dozens of others, stop by to pat the heads of a couple of smallfry playing on a swing set outside a dressing room.

They are the youngsters of Sally Field, the diminutive beauty of "The Girl With Something Extra" series.

Sally has solved the working mother dilemma by bringing Peter, 4, and Eli, 1½, to the studio twice a week. Her dressing room is the only one in town with a chain link fence around it for use as a play yard.

"I put up the play yard and brought fun things to the dressing room so the boys could enjoy themselves. I didn't want them to just sit in a room like a couple of angels to ease my guilt."

"It's like going to a park. I enjoy them as much as they enjoy coming here. They've made friends of all the cast and crew."

"Sometimes John Davidson (Sally's co-star in the NBC series) brings John Jr. — he's four years old — along and puts him in the yard with my boys."

Sally is a veteran of two previous series, "Gidget" and "The Flying Nun." At 27 she is a polished professional.

"ON THE first two series I began to feel isolated from the world," she said. "The hours were impossible long and I never had much time to think of anything else except my work."

"This time I'm blending my personal life and my career together. So far it's working beautifully."

THE trailer-dressing room has a special drawer for toys, a snack shelf with cookies, fruit and pretzels and in summer there is a plastic wading pool beside the swings.

Between takes on the set Sally can be found frolicking with her sons, reading them stories and putting them down for a nap.

State said facing 25% oil product deficit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California faces a petroleum product deficit of 535,000 barrels per day or 25 per cent of the demand in 1974, the State Energy Planning Council was told Friday.

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, chairman of the council, said a planning report also showed that the state was now dependent on out-of-state sources for more than half of its total energy supply.

In 1973, Reinecke said, California obtained about 58 per cent of its natural gas requirements from the southwestern states.

Its total 1973 consumption was 1.12 million equivalent barrels of oil per day. But Reinecke said, forecasted delivery rates for 1974 are .750 million equivalent barrels of oil per day.

"This reduction in delivery of natural gas will require greater use of fuel oil by public utilities," Reinecke said.

"California's dependence is further complicated by the fact that the state has no significant supply of commercial coal readily available as an alternative fuel for gas or oil," Reinecke added.

Also complicating the state's energy situation are the Arab nations' oil embargo, declining production of oil and gas within the state, abnormal military demands for products from California and anticipated natural gas deliveries from Canada which did not come through, he said.

"The report, projecting California's energy balance for the first quarter of the new year, sees a petroleum product deficit of 535,000 barrels per day or 25 per cent of the demand," Reinecke said.

Wesley G. Bruer, council coordinator, said, "Demand for petroleum products in California will exceed supplies at least until adequate availability of crude oil enables refineries to return to near-capacity production." Reinecke said the "most immediate and critical fuel shortage" was in residual fuel oil supplies used for direct burning in power plants and industrial plants.

He also said gasoline demands in January "will probably be brought into balance with supply by a combination of increased conservation measures, allocation programs, and higher prices."

Waldie urges state to compete with oil firms

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor
Congressman Jerome Waldie, D-Antioch, now on a walking tour of the state in his gubernatorial campaign, Friday proposed a California energy corporation to compete with private oil companies.

In a Los Angeles news conference, a respite in his 20-miles-a-day hike through the Central Valley, Waldie charged that the oil industry, through monopoly and interlocking directorates, discourages development of any sources of energy except the "finite" sources that it owns or is "busily engaged in acquiring," oil, coal, gas and uranium.

"Only the public has a stake in developing such energy sources as solar, wind, tidal and geothermal," he said.

Asked about the classic injunction against government intruding into private industry, Waldie said, "If the situation we're confronting today doesn't warrant that sort of action, nothing will. The criticism of private industry ignoring the public interest... is a far more relevant criticism."

Neither a national nor state energy corporation should put private oil companies out of business, Waldie said, but they would parallel the impact of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Private corporations, he said, refused to develop energy for the Tennessee Valley "because there was not enough profit to be made. And so the TVA developed energy for that entire valley. A private power system now operates in tandem with the TVA but that private system is kept in line, in terms of the public interest, because it must compete with the public corporation."

Alternate sources of energy will not be developed by the public, Waldie said, "because, unhappily, the political power of the oil companies has precluded any great investment of public resources into development of any sources of energy other than those owned by the private oil companies."

"The oil industry owns a fat part of the administration and a fat part of Congress. Oil company contributions to congressmen, senators, state legislators and governors ought to be examined in great detail."

Waldie predicted that President Nixon will resign by the end of March because of the imminence of impeachment and pressure from Republican legislators returning to Congress after testing the sentiment of their constituents.

GOP legislators will report, he said, that Nixon "is a massive liability to the Republican party coming into the 1974 elections. No Republican member of Congress or the Senate desires to go into the 1974 elections with Richard Nixon as the leader of the party when (Vice President) Gerald Ford is available to succeed him and is a much more attractive leader of their party in the '74 election."

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You'll find yourself responding to the call for some expression beyond your usual round of routine amenities and functions. Welcome the opportunity.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Nothing happens quite as conveniently as you'd like. If you will pursue your goals patiently and with outward calm, surprisingly good response develops.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Having held the line while your friends experimented, you'll find them coming back to agree once more. You haven't missed anything you'd want.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Let the morning hours be a personal mini-holiday. Serious thought brings a bright idea and you are off and running for a lively day and evening.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): By the time you're organized to go, conditions change for the better and you're in good shape to go farther afield than planned. Be venturesome.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be prompt and define your pursuit of duty. Get clear early, then organize an excursion or social affair of sorts. It needn't be elaborate or expensive.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Once you get into the rhythm of this Sunday, life tends to go swiftly and well. Benefits obtained now are generally free of strings.

Aries (March 21-April 19): For once, a late start is preferable, planning ahead for a long evening. Obstacles encountered early should be no more than a challenge.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Give yourself a break from routine, but stay busy with activity which supports the general welfare as well as your own interests.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Attend your share of community observances early, in dignity and your finest appearance, then be on your way to catch up with recent developments.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): This Sunday is great for excursions, distant travel, and if you're going out of curiosity so much the better. Bring loved ones with you.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Leave actual business aside for the day; attend to ceremony and formalities early. Afternoon and evening are excellent for social movement.

Year ahead: many small firms to end in mergers

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business-Finance Editor

The coming year will see increased agitation and violence in the nation, the end of Phase IV controls, the failure of a major U.S. bank, stepped up merger and acquisition activity, and the disappearance of one in four stock and bond brokerage firms.

These predictions are from mergers and acquisitions consultant Arthur Cuse, writing in California Business, a West Coast weekly newspaper.

Cuse said the blockades of major highways by truck drivers foreshadow "agitation and violence similar to what existed during the Vietnam war."

The reason, he wrote, "is a general feeling of unrest caused by continuing inflation, an increasingly centralized government, and rapid change in social and other structures."

Phase IV will be ended because it doesn't work, Cuse predicted. "However," he added, "the government will say that Phase IV is being discontinued because it has accomplished its objectives."

Cuse believes that the slow payment or nonpayment of big loans by third-world countries will cause the failure of at least one major U.S. bank and encourage consolidation among others.

"U.S. banks will become more cautious about lending to third-world countries," he predicted.

Acquisition and merger activity will increase during the year, Cuse said. He specifically predicted that small companies will find it harder to grow and thus will be acquired by big companies.

A trend will continue towards making acquisitions for cash or cash and notes instead of stock.

Generally, it will be a buyers' market in the making of acquisitions.

The "hot" areas will involve companies in the fields of energy, health care, maintenance, real estate, food processing and agriculture.

Prices paid for companies in terms of price/earnings multiples will be less than in the past.

Foreign companies will acquire more major U.S. companies.

No legislation restricting foreign ownership of U.S. companies will be passed.

Wall Street itself will be a major area of merger and acquisition activity, with one out of four firms either failing or being acquired by year's end.

Cuse also predicted continued high interest rates, an increasing rate of inflation, and wage increases that exceed the 5.5 per cent government guideline.

Black market

For the first time in history, thanks to Phase 4 controls, the United States is in the throes of a peacetime black market, says Purchasing World, a magazine that goes to 70,000 industrial buyers.

Call it a black market, gray market, or any shade between, there's no question that a "second" marketplace has sprung up to supply much-needed industrial materials, the magazine reports.

Harried purchasing executives across the country, the magazine points out, say they can get all they need of supposed short supplies — if they are willing to pay the price.

Although plastics head up the black market availability list, almost every "short" material can "be had for a price." Chemicals, especially petroleum-based products, run a close second to plastics, followed by metals of all kinds — including steel sheet.

Industrial purchasing managers report paying as much as six times the price allowed by government controls for some commodities. And the second market price varies by geography, quantity, and the supplier involved.

One vice president-purchase in New Jersey, for instance, says styrene is impossible to get at the allowable price of 17 cents/lb. "But I can get all I want for 46 cents," he reports. "The reason that price sticks in my mind is I just took delivery of six truckloads at that rate."

A procurement executive in New York gets his styrene for only 36 cents/lb. And on the West Coast, one buying chief ruefully notes that "in some cases, styrene has been purchased for as high as 60 cents/lb."

Any sharp industrial buyer, the magazine notes, knows about material availability from other than normal sources, even if he's not shopping the black market.

For example, a purchasing agent in Ohio, who stresses that he opposes using anything but the regular marketplace for his buys, says oil is available in limited quantities in his area at a rumored 100 per cent increase in price. Similarly, an industrial buyer in northern New York can get iron oxide and titanium dioxide pigments, and DOP chemicals (rubber plasticizers) at double the regular market price.

And the purchasing manager for a major food packager says plastic resins, film and parts, and specialty paper, like butcher wrap, are available on the black market.

Where is all this "extra" material coming from?

It's not always easy to trace, the magazine explains. Some of it comes from smaller producers, who are not covered by government control and are grabbing this opportunity to reap large profits.

Some of it is foreign material, imported and sold at allowable higher prices. And some of it comes from brokers and middlemen who are adding on a slightly higher than normal commission.

Cooling period

Consumer spending in California — already showing signs of a slowdown from the peak growth rates in the first half of this year — will continue to cool, at least through the next six months, Wells Fargo Bank reported.

Vice President Harold Buma, manager of the Bank's Economics Department, said the triple impact of the energy shortage, an economic slowdown and inflation, will be primary causes of the dampened retail sales.

"Consumer confidence has taken a dip as the possibilities of a slowdown in 1974 have increased," Buma said. "Augmenting these possibilities are the potential problems arising from fuel shortages and the threat of rationing."

Matter of dress

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two university researchers say a study they conducted shows a well-groomed shoplifter is less likely to be turned in than an unkempt one dressed in blue jeans.

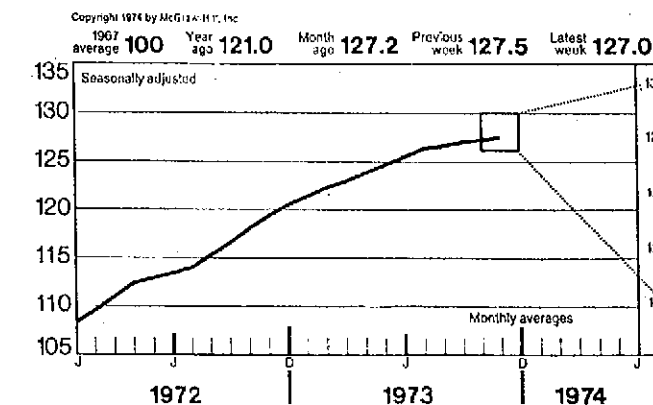

Dr. Darrell J. Steffenmeier, a North Carolina State University sociologist, and Dr. Robert M. Terry of the University of Akron, said their conclusion was based on a series of rigged shoplifting incidents in which the sex and appearance of the shoplifter varied. "In general, most customers seemed inclined not to report shoplifting incidents," the researchers said, but added that appearance plays a major role in the reporting of deviant behavior. The study concluded that the least likely of all to be reported are "straight" shoplifters who are the same sex as the witness.

However, Buma pointed out that "as the worst of the energy problems pass, as housing regains strength, and as inflationary trends slow in subsequent months, consumer sales will begin to pick up again."

Among the hardest hit of all California consumer markets will be auto sales, the economist said. He expects auto sales to reach just over one million cars, some 170,000 less than 1973.

The sales of a wide range of other durable goods in the state are also slowing, Buma said. Particularly affected are sales of furniture, appliances and other household-related items, which have been hit by the decline in California housing.

INDUSTRY WEEK

Basic materials short

A shortage of basic materials will be more severe than the shortage of energy, Industry Week reported.

The shortage of materials, like the shortage of energy, stems from a shortage of investment, the magazine for managers explained.

Investment is the fuel of our economy, the magazine said in pointing out that investments levels have fallen dangerously low, not only in energy — for which the implications extend far beyond the shortages precipitated by today's Arabian oil embargo — but also in basic materials for which the implications extend far beyond the shortages precipitated by today's price controls.

Beyond the short-term shortages lie growing long-term shortages and long-term hardships if steps are not taken to refuel the economy promptly — or more accurately to permit the economy to refuel itself.

The shortage of capital stems from a lack of opportunity to make a profit on investment, giving the oil industry as an example. The returns on investment were insufficient for the oil companies to invest either in refineries or in the exploration and development of new wells to produce the oil to supply them.

IN 1956, THE OIL INDUSTRY drilled some 16,000 new wells; in 1972, the total was only 4,500. Yet demand for both oil and gas had more than doubled.

Similarly, there was a shortage of refining capacity. The combined capacity of the nation's 250 refineries is only 13 million barrels per day, some 4 million barrels per day less than the nation consumes. When

NEW YORK (AP) — The extent and impact of Arab oil diplomacy has received top billing as the major economic imponderable of 1974, but in the minds of some economists another factor is even more of a puzzle.

The factor is human psychology, and the puzzle to those who have to lay plans a year ahead is how consumers will react to all the bad news that seems to be stored up for 1974.

The oil problem has been resolved for the moment by assuming an end to the Mideast cutbacks by spring. This proposition underlies a great many forecasts that call for a mild recession to be followed by expansion.

The assumption could very well turn out to be far off the mark, of course, but at least it permits forecasters to come up with a working hypothesis.

BUT HOW do you figure the human mind? The federal government has already indicated what its expenditures will be. And business capital spending, surveys show, can be expected to rise 10 to 13 per cent.

Consumers too have given some indications through surveys that their spending plans will be lower. Those plans, however, are based on conditions as seen now rather than on conditions that might develop.

How will workers react to seeing their neighbors and friends losing their jobs, as many of them surely will? Many forecasts of unemployment are for a rate of 5.9 per cent, and that would mean five million jobless. Will high heating oil prices frighten homeowners into cutting back in other areas of their budgets? Can millions of Americans calmly accept restrictions on gasoline which mean, in effect, restraints on their way of life?

How will Americans interpret complaints from their biggest industries, complaints that already have begun, that they face serious financial difficulties without substantial price increases?

IF INFLATION accelerates during the first half of 1974 will it produce a consumer response that might undermine the economic resurgence that many forecasters expect to develop in the latter part of the year?

Will housing come out of its own private depression? If interest rates remain high and prices continue to rise, more and more Americans will find themselves unable to fulfill their dreams. The consequences?

THESE ARE some of the factors that puzzle economists, and which they tend to dismiss as beyond the perimeter of their discipline. But they aren't.

The consumer today is the catalyst of the economy — not the government, and not business. The consumer, not Uncle Sam or the biggest banks, is the big spender — when he chooses to be.

At the turn of the century he didn't have that choice because all his money went for essentials, leading economists to the correct assumption that he was completely predictable. Whatever money he received he had to spend.

Buma said he expects the weakness in the state's housing market — caused by the shortage of mortgage funds, higher interest rates and tightened lending criteria — to continue through the first half of the new year.

Buma said income gains will average only about seven per cent next year, compared to about ten per cent this year. Unemployment will rise from its current level of 5.2 per cent. These factors will slow sales of luxury items.

"As is typical during a slowdown," Buma said, "consumer spending on soft goods such as clothing, food and other nondurable items will not be as hard hit as on durables."

The index continued to slide for the week ended Dec. 22. After seasonal adjustments, auto and truck assemblies fell sharply as some plants were shut down for "inventory adjustment" and others were idled by a snow storm. Intercity trucking declined significantly as bad weather conditions hampered transportation all along the East Coast. Minor declines occurred in steel, bituminous coal, and crude-oil refinery runs. Gains were posted in lumber, paper, and electric power. Rail freight held steady for the week.

1973 began, not one new refinery was under construction.

Until the Arabs embargoed oil, the magazine pointed out, it was not a lack of petroleum but a lack of refining capacity that underlay the fuel shortage beginning to occur in the U.S.

Among the investment needs in the U.S. between now and the year 2000 are: Steel industry, $70 billion; copper industry, $16.5 billion; aluminum industry, $30 billion; oil refineries, $770 billion; and coal industry, $175 billion.

RAISING OF THE VAST amounts of money needed by industry will be a Herculean job for industry. Some of the funds will come from profits and some will come from bond and equity markets, but these sources will not be able to supply all of the capital needed. To help fill the need for funds, the international market might be tapped to some extent, but the competition there will be strong because every developed country will be going through a similar explosion in capital spending and placing persistent demands upon capital markets worldwide, Industry Week pointed out.

The concern of many men in industry is that this nation has yet to recognize the fundamental materials planning that must be undertaken soon if the country's materials needs are to be met.

"If we are not to face a future of increasing and enervating shortages, we had best determine soon where we are going and how we are going to get there," Industry Week said.

Gibraltar opens in Carson

Gibraltar Savings' grand opening celebration continues through today inaugurating its new Carson Mall office, it was announced by Herbert J. Young, president of the statewide $1.4 billion association.

The new facility recently was completed in Carson Mall next to Sears at the northeast entrance. Rose Harris, formerly assistant manager of Gibraltar's Del Amo Fashion Square branch in Torrance, will be manager of the Carson Mall office.

Gibraltar's radio spokesman, Hal "The Great Gildersleeve" Peary, was an in-person host for two days of the celebration.

Antitrust suit aims at five

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Five manufacturers of plastic pipe fittings have been named in an antitrust suit alleging conspiracy to fix prices and suppress competition in the industry.

The class action suit was brought in U.S. District Court by 16 Northern California plumbing wholesale distributors and 96 builder-developers, builder owners and general building contractors.

The suit alleges that a conspiracy took place between January 1966 and June 29, 1971. In 1970 the five firms sold 54 per cent of the $32 million in such fittings, the suit says.

Named as defendants were Celanese Corp. of New York City with 1970 sales of $5 million in fittings; R. G. Sloane Mfg. Co. Inc. of Sun Valley, Calif., with $8 million in 1970 fittings sales, and its parent firm, The Susquehanna Corp. of Chicago with 1970 sales of $2.8 million in fittings and Plastiline Inc. of Pompano Beach, Fla., with $2.3 million in such 1970 sales.

The suit asks undetermined triple damages and an injunction against antitrust law violations.

The same five companies also were named in civil and criminal antitrust suits.

We're cutting it thin

By DON CAMPBELL
It has nothing to do with the trimming of meat, but the phrase "cutting it" has come into popular usage as a graphic economic term meaning "sufficiency (or a deficiency) of money."
As in: "His take-home pay is $100 a week? How does he cut it on that?" he "cuts it" pretty thin—that's for sure.

Q: TALK of runaway inflation versus depression has me all confused. I'm 49 and widowed and would like to know how I can make the most of what I have. Should I sell my house, or pay off my new condominium?

It cost $28,000 and we paid 20 per cent down for a 7 per cent 25-year mortgage one-and-a-half years ago. Payments are $202 plus $54 a month maintenance.

I have approximately $30,000, earn $8,000 a year and receive a pension of $150 a month. I have been participating in a tax-sheltered annuity on the job (50-50 in bonds and common stock) and have approximately $3,500 invested in there now.

I also have about 50 shares, each, in GE, CIT Financial and Cleveland Electric Illuminating. Also I've become interested in Mexican "financieras" where money is automatically reinvested whenever enough is earned to buy another certificate.

A: You're not in bad shape but you may be cutting it a bit thin on your housing — your mortgage payments and maintenance are running about a third of your income (although I assume that you have $30,000 invested in something, and not simply sitting idle). This is a little

I don't think you would have much trouble selling the condominium — despite today's tight money situation — because your mortgage carries an attractive rate and because you don't have enough equity in it to prevent the would-be buyer from assuming your mortgage.

Still and all, would you be able to find a comparable apartment for the same amount of money? I doubt it.

On balance, then, think I'd be inclined to hang onto the condominium if it's not too much of a bind.

If it IS a crunch you might toy with the idea of refinancing it with about $15,000 of your cash, chop the monthly payments down (although you'll have to reconform yourself to a considerably higher interest rate and would probably pay you spend a little more about $300 in most places — and assure yourself of an “open” mortgage that can be renegotiated later when rates come down.) You’re too young to go exclusively, into fixed-income securities because I suspect that inflation is going to be with us for quite some time.

Whether you decide to refinance the condominium, or not, I'd put about half of the cash remaining in either a good, growth-oriented mutual fund or consult a broker and choose a couple of individual stocks that are on a par with those you already hold.

ready Mexican financier? A good bet — the peso is solid and the Mexican government's banking system tries to maintain an approximately 2 percent spread between interest rates south of the border and north of the border. If you're interested in learning more, I still have available at $2 million a 18-part series on "The Investor and Retiree in Mexico" (P. O. Box 2810, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y., 10017).

Q: HOW are shares of stock in a street name distributed by the broker when the client dies? Is the present cash value paid to the estate or are certificates issued to the estate of the deceased?

A: It all depends. It can be handled a variety of ways, but the decision I'm told — is up to the executor, or administrator, of the estate.

As soon as the brokerage receives notification of the death, of course, the account is immediately frozen until legal transfer instructions are received from the executor.

Presumably, one lawyer involved in the security business said, the executor's instruction will hinge largely on the terms of the will (how many heirs are involved).

(Campbell welcomes letters, but can answer only a limited number.)

'Truth or Consequences' now on Saturdays, too

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Fans of "Truth or Consequences," which airs Monday through Friday at 3 p.m. on KNBC, may be pleased to know that the audience participation show also can be seen on Saturdays at 7 p.m., starting today, on Channel 4.

Bob Barker, who has been hosting "Truth or Consequences" ever since Ralph Edwards picked him for the job in 1956, continues in that role for the first-run Saturday evening segments.

"Thrillseekers," starring Chuck Connors, will follow the game show on Channel 4's new Saturday evening lineup, moving from the 8:30 p.m. Sunday time slot to 7:30 Saturday. The two shows replace the science-adventure series "Starlost."

Persons who engage in death-defying careers and hobbies are spotlighted on "Thrillseekers" with Connors as host.

On KNXT (Channel 2), "Dusty's Trail," Western comedy series starring Bob Denver and Forrest

Tucker, now airs on Saturdays at 5 p.m. It has been replaced by "The Bobby Goldsboro Show" in the 7:30 p.m. Friday slot on Channel 2.

SUPER SUNDAY arrives tomorrow, which means that all pro football fans will want to spend part of the afternoon watching the Miami Dolphins take on the Minnesota Vikings in Houston for the pro championship.

The Super Bowl VIII battle will be televised on CBS (Channel 2), starting at 12:30 p.m. A pregame show will start at noon.

Sports fans have plenty to see on the tube today, also. Highlights include the Senior Bowl football game from Montgomery, Ala., at 10 a.m. on Channel 4; the UCLA-Stanford basketball game at 3 p.m. on Channel 5; the Don Carter bowling classic at 3:30 p.m. on Channel 7; the Lakers-Philadelphia basketball contest at 5 p.m. on Channel 5; a "Super Bowl VIII" preview special at 8 p.m. on Channel 11, and the "Man Named Lombardi" special, with George C. Scott as narrator, at 9 p.m. on Channel 11.

PAUL MOYER, a KNBC news anchorman, has been named regular co-host of Channel 4's "Sunday Show" with Kelly Lange. The show, which features interviews with celebrities and others as it visits various locales in Southern California, airs from 4:30 to 6 p.m. Sundays.

Tom Snyder was host with Miss Lange until he started doing NBC's "Tomorrow" late-night talk show.

"HOW YOU CAN Survive the Energy Crisis" is the title of a KNXT news special that will be televised from 6 to 7 p.m. Sunday on Channel 2. It will examine whether drivers can get by on 10 gallons of gas a week and the pros and cons of commuting, rapid transit, train, bus and air travel.

The special also will offer a report on big cars vs. little cars and the future of the large luxury auto, and will present the latest known information on the reasons behind the energy crisis. Tips on use of household appliances will be given.

"OBJECTIVE: Healthy Babies," a "Medix" TV program about birth defects which was partially preempted by the double overtime of a pro basketball telecast on Channel 2 last Sunday, will be rebroadcast at 3:30 p.m. today on the same station.

The "Medix" program scheduled for 4 p.m. Sunday on Channel 2, after the Super Bowl game, will feature Dr. Robert Kerlan on "Chalk Talk With a Jock Doc." Dr. Kerlan, widely known for his work with athletes, will discuss sports injuries.

"TRUE GRIT," the movie that brought John Wayne an Oscar, will be brought back to TV Sunday night on ABC (Channel 7) from 7:30 to 10:30.

TOP VIEWING TODAY

ALL IN THE FAMILY, 8 p.m., Ch. 2. Everyone is happy at Archie's surprise birthday party except Archie, who is surprised by what it says on his birth certificate.

MOVIE: "The Sons of Katie Elder," 8:30 p.m., Ch. 7. John Wayne and Dean Martin star in 1965 Western about four brothers who try to clear their tarnished family name.

MARY TYLER MOORE SHOW, 9 p.m., Ch. 2. Cloris Leachman, as Mary's neighbor, Phyllis, now is a real estate agent and tries to snare Lou Grant (Edward Asner) as a client.

MOVIE: "The Way West," 9 p.m., Ch. 4. Kirk Douglas, Robert Mitchum and Richard Widmark star in 1957 Western about a wagon-train journey from Missouri to Oregon in 1843.

BOB NEWHART SHOW, 9:30 p.m., Ch. 2. Feeling that middle age is creeping up faster than she realized, Emily (Suzanne Pleshette) decides to update her image with a new wardrobe that she says is youthful and Bob feels is childish.

Wayne also is in the movie "The Sons of Katie Elder" at 8:30 tonight on Channel 7.

Only two movies made the Nielsen top 20 in the week that ended Dec. 30. "The Daughters of Joshua Cabe" was No. 15 and "Oklahoma" No. 18. "All in the Family" continued to lead the ratings, with "The Waltons" second and "Sanford and Son" third. The "CBS Reports" special on the Rockefeller family finished in last (50th) place.

A LAKEWOOD WOMAN, Nancy (Mrs. Byron K.) Barnhart, has been informed that a segment of "Let's Make a Deal" in which she won an automobile and other prizes worth more than a total of $11,000 will air this evening (Channel 7 at 7:30). The show was taped Nov. 28 and Mrs. Barnhart was dressed in an outfit entirely covered by 33 ribbons which she had won at the Los Angeles County Fair for her floral arrangements.

Pondexter, McDonald suit up

49er stars win in court, will face SJS tonight

Glenn McDonald and Roscoe Pondexter made the biggest point of their lives Friday.

Through their attorneys - the Long Beach law firm of Simon, McKinsey and Miller - the two Long Beach State University basketball players succeeded in winning a temporary restraining order against the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. and will be in uniform tonight when the 49ers invade San Jose to battle the Spartans in a PCAA game.

U.S. District Court Judge Manuel L. Real issued the restraining order at 5 p.m. Friday and less than three hours later McDonald, a senior guard, Pondexter, a junior forward, and assistant coach Dwight Jones were aboard a plane bound for San Jose.

Judge Real's directive enjoins the NCAA from (1) barring the two LBSU players from athletic eligibility in intercollegiate competition and (2) continuing to enforce the controversial 1.6 rule.

In addition, Judge Real also issued a show-cause order to the NCAA, instructing that body to file any documents of opposition on or before Jan. 14.

Long Beach State also received a copy of Judge Real's restraining order. Jack Shainline, dean of students, said he was served at 6:45 p.m. by attorneys Harry J. Simon and Robert Alban.

Before they left for San Jose, McDonald and Pondexter were certified as eligible by associate dean and athletic representative Frank Bowman.

There appeared to be some confusion concerning the rapid-fire events swirling about McDonald and Pondexter, both of whom were ruled ineligible earlier in the week for allegedly qualifying for eligibility "on the basis of fraudulent test scores."

It was originally reported Friday that no hearing was held before Judge Real and that he set no date for one.

Actually, attorneys representing the 49er pair filed a complaint at 2:50 p.m. and Judge Real issued his decision at 5 p.m.

McDonald and Pondexter were challenging the 1.6 rule which was in effect when they entered school but no longer exists.

"It is the opinion of President (Stephen) Horn and myself that the restraining order hopefully will assure that due process for the student athletes will occur and justice will be served," Dean Shainline said after hearing of Judge Real's decision.

McDonald and Pondexter turned to the courts after they were denied an appeal hearing by the NCAA Thursday.

Both missed Thursday's game in Stockton against the University of Pacific where the 49ers apparently used their absence as a motivator and routed the Tigers, 72-53.

Coach Lute Olson and other members of his beleaguered team, struck down by probation and the ineligibility of McDonald and Pondexter within a 48-hour nightmare which began at 6 p.m. last Sunday, did not learn of Judge Real's ruling until McDonald, Pondexter and Jones arrived in San Jose late Friday night.

Pondexter returns at an opportune moment. Forward Carlos Mina, who started for Roscoe against UOP, injured a knee 16 minutes into Thursday's game and will not be available tonight.

"He has a contusion of the knee and it's going to keep him out at least a week," Olson reported.

Olson's comment came shortly before he accompanied the 49ers to a movie house in San Jose Friday night, not knowing he would have the services of his two starters tonight.

A triumph against the Spartans, always tough on their own floor, would put the 49ers in excellent position to accomplish the only goal still available to them in this tempestuous season - a fifth successive PCAA championship.

The 49ers, however, have never completed a visiting two-game sweep of UOP and San Jose.

The Spartans launched their PCAA season in imposing style Thursday, hammering San Diego State, 81-59, as Pete Miller scored 25 points and Ken Mickey added 23.

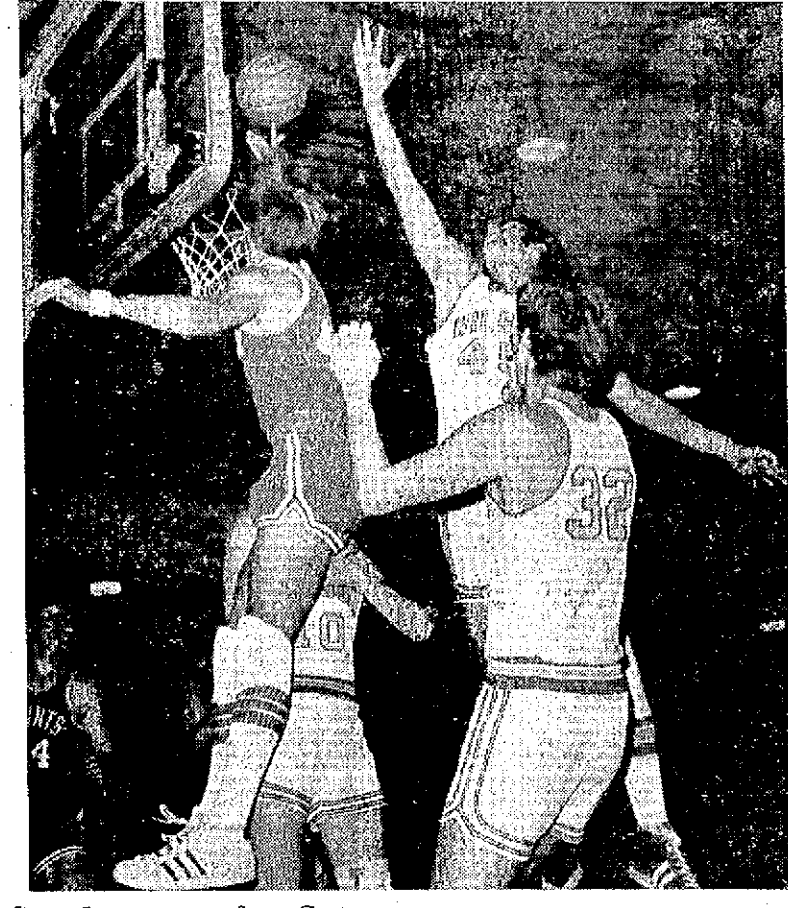

They also received strong support from 6-5 forward Earl Hogue, who gathered 15 rebounds and blocked several shots.

"I think I play better when the game is physical," Hogue said.

With Roscoe Pondexter, no shrinking violet, back in uniform tonight, the 49ers figure to be sufficiently physical.

And with McDonald returning they're liable to be very emotional, too.

Wilkes takes up slack as Bruins breeze, 92-56

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

When Bill Walton is around Keith Wilkes performs brilliantly. Without the big redhead, Silky is merely phenomenal.

With Walton out of the lineup for the first time in 70 games, Wilkes took over the reins Friday and whipped the UCLA Bruins to a convincing 92-56 victory over big brother Golden Bear from California.

In helping the Bruins secure their 86th win in a row and roll up a Pacific-8 Conference record 46th successive triumph, Wilkes left little doubt that UCLA can survive with Walton's presence.

Keith scored UCLA's first nine points and shared in every spurt thereafter as the Bruins sliced through the Cal defense for a 44-22 halftime advantage.

The senior all-America from Santa Barbara missed only two of nine field goals the first 20 minutes, averaging a point every 60 seconds.

When he left the floor 11:28 into the second half, Wilkes had 24 points and UCLA's starters handed their understudies a 29-point lead.

All the reserves did was outscore Cal, 27-20, thereafter and give the first-liners some added rest before today's matinee contest with Stanford. That game will be televised over Channel 5 at 3 o'clock. But don't look for Walton to appear.

The two-time collegiate player of the year spent Friday evening in bed and his return is the big question in Westwood.

"Bill didn't respond to treatment all week," advised coach John Wooden. "He didn't improve each day as we expected. It appears to be a deep muscle bruise in the back with some possible ligament damage to his rib cage."

"It is very doubtful if he will be available for Notre Dame (a week from today)."

While folks in South Bend send up a volley cheer on high, Cal coach Dick Edwards could only offer the usual reasons why the visiting team stumbled against the Bruins.

He had a Pauley Pavilion crowd of 12,271 to witness a 278 first-half shooting performance by his Golden Bears (10-36) and the second half (9-30) was of little improvement.

"To best UCLA a team must shoot 50-60 per cent in the first half. Twenty-seven per cent isn't going to best anyone," he frowned.

"You've got to play good defense and that means a great job on the defensive boards and not giving them those second and third shots."

Edwards said the absence of Walton mattered little. He's left-handed and probably does a few things idiosyncratic.

"But those other four

Wilson tips St. Anthony in final seconds, 56-54

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

Even before the Wilson-St. Anthony high school game got under way Friday night, Bruin coach Butch Taylor knew it would be anything but easy for his team.

"That 18-point difference will disappear in a hurry over here," he said in reference to Wilson having to come into the Saints' cozy gym only two weeks after having beaten St. Anthony, 60-42, in a semi-final round game of the Katella Tournament.

Although the end result was the same, Taylor proved to be a good prophet.

Wilson, doing what Jordan and Poly couldn't accomplish earlier, nipped the Saints on their home floor, 56-54, as Bill Davis tipped in a miss by teammate Tom Caserman in the final three seconds.

It was the seventh victory in a row for the streaking Bruins and 13th overall in 15 games. The Saints, losing for the fourth time in five outings, are now 10-5.

The Bruins had stayed one step ahead of the Saints through a hectic second half until two Terry Carney free throws had tied the score at 54-all in the final 1:48.

Wilson stalled for 87 seconds, taking a time out at 0:21 to set up a last shot. Caserman, who finished with 27 points and had used his five inch height advantage to good use to score in close to the basket, saw his baseline shot hit the rim. Davis, however, leaped above the crowd around the basket to nudge the ball into the hoop.

It was another frustrating loss for the Saints, who had started out strongly by hitting 10-of-16 shots in the first quarter, then fading only to rally again in the late stages of the third quarter on superlative shooting by Brian Lenzen.

Lenzen, held to a season low seven points in the first meeting, more than made up for that off night the second time around. Moved to forward, the 6-2 senior scored 32 of his team's 54 points including 12 in the first eight minutes.

After the strong start, the Saints missed their first eight attempts in a four-point second quarter. It enabled Wilson to climb from a seven-point deficit (20-13) and finally take the lead before Lenzen got his team's only field goal of the period at 1:22 to send the teams off the court tied, 24-24.

The game, witnessed by a standing room only crowd, was played with all the intensity of the Saint-Jordan game that was also decided by two points earlier this season.

Veteran Saint coach Jack Errion was hit with a technical foul during one heated portion of the second half. Taylor and Bruin officials were pleading as early as 1:30 in the game for refs to stop the Saint cheering section from standing up and weaving back and forth when the Bruins were shooting free throws at the west end of the court.

Trojans' bench scuttles Cards

By LOEL SCHIRADER

USC discovered success Friday night with two players who previously had spent most of their time on the bench.

Guard Biff Burrell and forward Clint Chapman scored 10 of the Trojans' 11 points during a stretch drive and USC prevailed over Stanford, 64-57, before 5,157 fans at the L.A. Sports Arena.

The victory gave USC a 2-1 Pacific-8 Conference record and dropped Stanford, figured in pre-season speculation as a contender for second, to 0-3 in the league.

USC goes for a weekend sweep tonight against California at 8.

Stanford went ahead of the Trojans with 4:05 remaining in the first half and the Cardinals stayed in front until Burrell hit both ends of a one-and-one free throw situation with 9:28 left in the game.

The Cardinals regained the lead briefly, then fell behind permanently when USC's John Lambert took a bullet pass from freshman Greg White and converted a layup with 6:58 remaining.

That's when Burrell and Chapman took over the scoring for the Trojans.

Stanford lost its head of steam when 7-foot center Rich Kelley went to the bench for a rest with three fouls six minutes into the second half.

"We had a four-minute breakdown when Kelley was out of there," said Stanford coach Howie Dallmar. "That was the difference."

That and the inspired performances of Burrell and Chapman.

Burrell was a 50 per cent free throw shooter going into the game but, with the Trojans leading by 53-52, he sank a pair, then was left at the line for another when Stanford's Melvin Arterberry drew a technical foul.

Burrell swished that one, too, then followed 37 seconds later with a driving layup that sent the Trojans in front, 58-52.

Vikings run, gun: 117-96

By JIM MANGAN
Staff Writer

There was Long Beach City College with a 26-point lead, 45-19, over Pasadena with only 13 minutes gone in the game.

There was LBCC coach Bill Fraser with a soft spot in his heart for the foe and putting in his reserves.

There was Pasadena warming up and finally scoring 10 unanswered points.

There was Fraser, a bit concerned, putting his regulars back in.

But there was Pasadena still running and gunning and scoring seven more points for a string of 17 before the Vikes could retaliate with a couple of free throws.

Suddenly, the LBCC lead was only 10, and Fraser's squad was lucky to get off the court at halftime with a decent margin.

Whatever the Viking coach told his players during intermission must have been the right thing, for LBCC came back out and rebuilt their lead with little time wasted, and most of that last 20 minutes was a track meet.

The final score was a resounding 117-96 Long Beach win.

Center Dave Hillman led a productive effort for his team with 28 points, including 10-for-11 from the free throw line, Dan Frost had 23, and Cal Wulfsberg 20, with most of his scoring coming on 12-for-13 from the charity line.

Long Beach is idle until next Saturday's game with Pierce, resting atop Metropolitan Conference standings with a 2-0 mark.

U.S. DAVIS CUPPERS TRAIL COLOMBIA

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—Colombian champion Ivan Molina took a commanding lead over American Erik Van Dillen and was on the verge of giving his country a 2-0 lead in Davis Cup tennis Friday when play was halted due to darkness.

Molina won the first two sets of the North American Zone final 6-4, 7-5 and was leading Van Dillen, of Aptos, Calif., 3-1 in the third when the match was stopped. Play is scheduled to resume this morning.

Colombia took a surprise 1-0 lead in the best-of-five series earlier in the day when Jairo Velasco beat Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., in a marathon match 6-1, 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Both Solomon and Van Dillen appeared to suffer from the high altitude of Bogota. U.S. coach Dennis Ralston twice asked for breaks during the three-hour opening match to allow Solomon to catch his breath and recover from cramps in his left leg.

One doubles match also is scheduled for today and the competition is supposed to wind up with a pair of singles matches Sunday, but the schedule could be changed depending on how long Van Dillen and Molina take to complete their match.

Van Dillen and Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico are expected to go against Velasco and Molina in the doubles.

OPEN ROAD SOUTH AND OPEN ROAD ANAHEIM THE WORLD'S LARGEST R.V. CENTERS JOIN HANDS PRESENTING A 30 DAY SPECTACULAR SALE OF THE CENTURY 500 RECREATIONAL VEHICLES FOR SALE NOW! MOTORHOMES - TRAVEL TRAILERS - MINI-MOTORHOMES CAMPERS - VAN CONVERSIONS

A FEW WORDS ABOUT GAS AND ENERGY —

"FOR MOST FOLKS LIVING IN L.A. OR ORANGE COUNTY, COMPLYING WITH THE MINIMUM GAS REQUEST OF THE GOVERNMENT IS IMPOSSIBLE. I USE, 4 GALLONS A DAY JUST TO GET TO & FROM WORK. HOW CAN I COMPLY?"

Your Open Road recreational vehicle can be the answer. You can form a pool of fellow employees. If say 10 of you commute to & from work, that's approximately 2 or 3 gallons per person per week. That leaves more than enough for normal use for all 10 families. Many large companies are buying or leasing several recreational vehicles for employee's pool use. We will work on an especially close margin with you or your employer on any recreational vehicle which will be used part of the time as a pool vehicle.

YOU DON'T USE ANY GASOLINE WHEN YOU'RE PARKED! MOST FOLKS WHO USE THEIR MOTORHOMES, TRAILERS AND CAMPERS EVERY WEEKEND SAY THAT'S WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT—PARKING ON THE BEACH, IN THE MOUNTAINS, OR AT THE SKI SLOPES. THE TEN GALLON WEEKEND STARTS THIS WEEKEND AT OPEN ROAD SOUTH & OPEN ROAD ANAHEIM!

We figured out scores of sightseeing and camping weekends which will only use about ten gallons of gas round trip. Camp at the beach near Newport - San Clemente - See Lion Country Tour Safari, the Queen Mary, Laguna Hundreds of places — many campgrounds. We came up with over 1,000.

One fellow we know took a 12 DAY motorhome vacation in the mountains. He & his family went hunting, fishing, boating & had the finest time they could remember & used LESS THAN A FULL TANK OF GAS. He proudly pointed out that while on vacation his 2 cars were not being used & his home with all of its energy-hungry appliances were turned off. His R.V. vacation saved energy!

"I'M WAITING TO SEE WHAT HAPPENS TO THE AVAILABILITY OF GASOLINE BEFORE I BUY A MOTORHOME. I WANT ONE, THE FAMILY WANTS ONE, AND THE DOG WANTS ONE. IN THE MEANTIME WE SIT AROUND THE HOUSE AND STARE AT EACH OTHER ON WEEKENDS."

Stop staring and help your dog out. You can in fact go on LONG camping trips on weekends, use your recreational vehicle every week day as a wagon or pool bus, you can drive as many miles as you wish & NOT USE A SINGLE DROP OF GASOLINE. Simply get 1 of our recreational vehicle with a DUAL FUEL SYSTEM - SIMPLY FLICK A SWITCH & YOU USE GAS OR READILY-AVAILABLE CLEAN-BURNING PROPANE. TAKE A PROPANE DEMO. RIDE TODAY.

MAYBE YOU'RE NOT READY TO BUY NOW BUT YOU WANT TO FIND OUT WHY YOUR NEIGHBOR WITH THE MOTORHOME IS ALWAYS CHUCKLING TO HIMSELF AND SINGING AND DOING OTHER FUNNY THINGS — OK, SO RENT ONE!

The 24 foot motor homes in our rental fleet are fully equipped with refrigerator, freezer, stove, oven, generator, toilet, shower, etc. Just bring your toothbrush and have a ball. Call us now and book a rental. It can be a deluxe ski chalet, a hunting or fishing lodge, or whatever. We specialize in packaged tours.

FIRST COME FIRST SERVED AT THIS PRICE SO DON'T MISS OUT

"WE REALLY WANT A MOTORHOME BUT WE REALLY NEED A STATION WAGON AND WE REALLY CAN'T AFFORD BOTH."

And we really gotcha this time! Open Road's MULTI-PURPOSE MINI-MOTORHOME. Use it during the week as a station wagon, a sedan or a truck. On weekends say the magic words "Let's go camping!" Presto - changed - it's a motorhome! Go to the beach and it's a Super-surfer. The list price is comparable to most big station wagons, but look at the sale price at Open Road South or Open Road Anaheim.
